Opener & Corkscrew Books
(Details in Sale Ads & On Website)

Note A-1 Beer was produced in Phoenix from 1933 to 1985.

N-41-2 A-1 Beer

Besides some wire openers, can piercers and some from distributors there are not many cool openers from Arizona. The N-41 knife is neat as it has a bottle outline on the handle. Not rare but as far as I know the only Bassett (maker) beer handle knife with a bottle.

Collections

More of Tom Gormally's collection offered in this issue. Check last few pages for "C"s, "E"s, "G"s, "H"s and some miscellaneous. Results from the last sale are also shown. Take the time to check over the list. A lot of openers are being offered.

—2015 JFO Convention #37 April 22-26 Hampton Inn Phoenix-Midtown Phoenix AZ—

At this time we have about 20 members signed up or indicating they will be attending the convention. The Hampton Inn rate is $115.00 a night (includes a free breakfast). The new light rail service can bring you from the airport to within two blocks of the hotel. Cost is $3 one way or $4 gets you an all day pass. The local breweriana chapter, A-1, is having a show in Phoenix the weekend before. Also the weekend after JFO the Rush To The Rockies Show will be occurring near Denver for anyone who might want to make a long vacation. You can email me questions about these two shows if you want to attend either one. The member's want list is on the next page and the convention and hotel registration and information are the last two pages of this issue. Try to bring a display whether one item or a small collection to share with your fellow collectors. The convention schedule shown above is still being finalized. Phoenix is a large city and below is a link to the top 30 things to see in the city and surrounding area.

http://www.tripadvisor.com/Attractions-g31310-Activities-Phoenix_Arizona.html

Remember the hotel cutoff is April 1st but if you can make it at the last minute please contact me and we will try to get you in. Make the 2015 JFO Convention a travel stop for you. It is always fun with lots of openers and corkscrews to be found. After this frigid February the warm climate of Arizona will be very welcomed. BE THERE!!!

—2016 JFO Convention Tentative Plans—

Sometime by early summer I will be working on a convention in Baltimore, Md. We may have to go to the Harrisburg, Pa. to Reading, Pa. area. Room rates are good in Baltimore but parking downtown is not cheap. I have been told that we could stay in the suburbs and there is light rail service that will quickly take you to the downtown area. If anyone has ideas or suggestions please let me know. I am looking at one of the last two weekends for April, 2016.

—Advertising Openers—

Sales have been good since Don Bull and I received the shipment in December. The hard cover book does weigh four and one-half pounds and I found out any international shipping is at least $38.00. Reviews have been very positive and the order form is enclosed in this issue. The one thing I have been telling people is this book gives you a good idea about beer brand cost for older style openers. I will bring a few copies to Phoenix. Make sure you get a copy.

Spouse's Corner

By Pat Stanley, the Editor's Spouse

Now that I am happily retired
New knowledge I have acquired

Now I know what John does all day
He is securely connected to eBay

However he does take time for a nap
Otherwise without some quiet, I might snap

Of course he must go to the Post Office around noon
To make sure any openers being mailed are delivered soon

When he goes on a polishing mission
Moving my car outside the garage is the tradition

One day he clogged up our hot water heater
A definite punishable dismeanor

Cotton flying from the polishing wheel
Made the hot water heater go completely still

We paid for that service call, only to have no hot water again
Not a fun trend

This time John put on his gas back pack blower to clean up right
Too bad he blew out the pilot light

Co-workers were concerned about us being together all day
So this is what they had to say

“Two life insurance policies on Pat and John may be a good investment
We can split the proceeds if there is a death settlement”

Hours spent in the pergalo
Should help that from ever being so

I won't be connected to work at JFO this year
Even being home with John, glad I ended my career

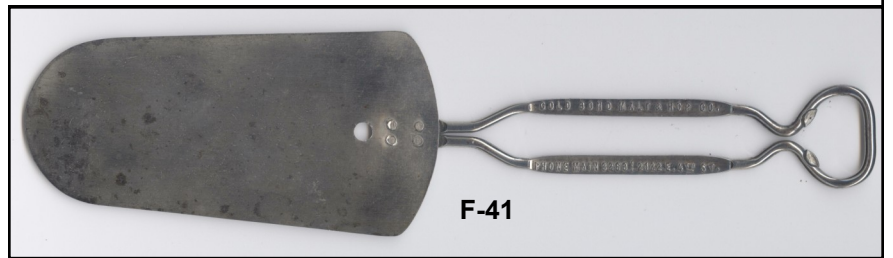

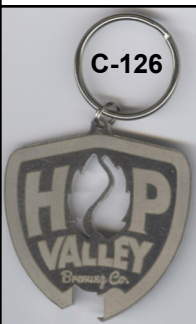

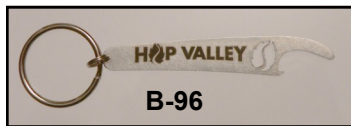

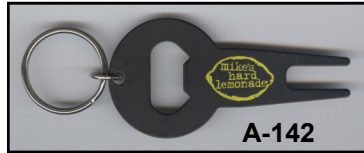

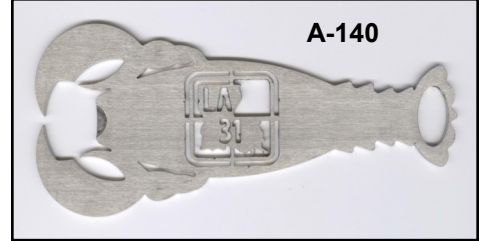

See you in Arizona very soon

New Handle for a Rapid Barmount

I usually do not buy non-beer barmount corkscrews. Last fall the Rapid barmount (bottom right) was offered on eBay with an advertising plate for “The Salt Lake Hardware Co Agents”. It was a Buy-It-Now for $145.00 (+ $16.00 shipping) and after a few seconds of thinking I jumped in and bought it. Well being the careful buyer I noticed the handle was missing it's wood grip (shown below). But as luck would have it I had bought another Rapid barmount a couple of years ago and on that one someone had removed the worm and added a bottle capper in it's place (you can see part of it in the lower left picture). The capper Rapid was in rough shape but did have the nice wooden handle attached to it. Once the Salt Lake Rapid arrived I thought it would be an easy switch. Getting the wooden handle out of the rough Rapid was pretty easy. It was like a long bolt with screw threads on one end (I did learn that the rough Rapid was one of the first produced). The Salt Lake Rapid handle was double threaded on both ends and was frozen in. I kept adding WD-40 each day and after a couple of weeks a dear neighbor used some channel locks to finally unscrew it. The replacement handle was screwed in and now I have a complete Rapid!

The Legend of the MERMAID

According to local folklore, mermaids once inhabited the waters surrounding Coronado island, and those enticing "sirens" sang beautiful songs to attract seafaring explorers away from the dangerous, jagged rocks of Point Loma and into the safe harbor of San Diego Bay.

Legends are questionable, but one islander tale you can believe in is that of Coronado Brewing Company's flavorful West Coast-style beers drawing locals and journeymen like a beery beacon to the warm embrace of Coronado's sunny shores and the brewery's front door. To that end, we have embraced the mermaid as our trademark image. Allow our alluring icon to seduce you to the bold, trademark taste of San Diego's vibrant and legendary craft brewing scene.

Please enjoy this opener, enjoy our great beers, and remember this tale.

Your Editor "The Expert" or in this case "The Sucker"

The opener above bottom left was bought at the NABA Convention in Toledo, Oh. It was a nice show with several JFO members in attendance (Haydock, Jay, Kaiser, Moter, Ostrow, Stambaugh, Summers and I am sure some others). Besides the bad water disaster in Toledo on Saturday things had gone well. I bought some good openers, traded some and sold well. In fact I sold well enough at the Saturday show that I bought the "sucker" opener right before I left. That would have been okay except I paid $200 for it (NOTE $200) for a home-made opener from Toledo. The Detroit seller had called me before the show and told me he had an opener I had not seen before. He showed it to me early on Saturday and I looked and said it was a $200 opener. He then shopped it everywhere at the show and most people laughed and handed it back. I had just taken in some serious money when he showed up. I jumped in and dug my own grave. I know that next time I need to carry a magnet (it does not stick to a magnet). The opener is bronze and not steel, lettering is hand stamped not machine, shape looks homemade and opener is stamped "Compliments / Art Volk Brewing Co. Toledo Ohio". When the guy had called he said no one had ever heard of the brewery. I guess not as only Art Volk a local beer drinker would have known anything about it. It was made a long time ago and I just have to throw it in the hard lesson pile. When things are going well be extra careful and watch those hustlers from Detroit (not Kaiser)!

Dan Morean found a previously unknown BLACK M-1-2 Haffenreffer. A very unusual background color.

G-9-208 Koch's Beer & Ale that sold for $208.00 on eBay.

“Opener and eBay Trivia” (“BIN” Buy-It-Now & “DNMR” Did Not Meet Reserve)

Ebay saw a lot of good openers sold the past six months. Overall older openers are not as plentiful and lord knows a lot of new and junk openers are offered for sale. If you are patient good openers can be bought and sometimes at a good price and sometimes at a high price. Check some of the highlights below. When one looks across a six month period for eBay you realize that the opener hobby is going strong.

A-004-036, Gutsch, 6, $93.99

A-013-006, Lemp Var C, 8, $105.00

A-024-999, Nu-Grape, 4, $98.00

The A-4-36 Gutsch went high at $93.99. Not a common opener but a few have turned up. Lemp A-13 cars seem to sell around the $100 range. I can't tell you how many A-24 Nu-Grape soda openers I have had over the years and if one brought $10-20 I was very happy. This one sold for $98.00 and was in rough condition.

A-026-001, Empire, 8, $125.02

A-026-001, Empire, 6, $102.50

A-028-006, Centennial (BIN), 4, $150.00

A-034-004, Gold Top (2 Examples), 8, $191.49

Over the years the A-26-1 Empire has surfaced many times and usually in very nice condition. It looked to me like new collectors ran these prices up. It is normally a $40-50 opener in excellent condition. The A-28-6 Centennial is fairly rare and two examples that sold on eBay before this one brought $200-225. The example sold above was worn but still brought $150. The A-34-4 Gold Top powder horn is rare as I had only seen a couple examples before these two turned up in one lot. They were part of a Gold Top/Hoster collection sold on eBay in early August.

A-036-999, Triners Wines & Liquors, 8, $127.50

A-999-999, (Elephant Head) 1933 Chicago WFs, 6, $142.49

A-999-999, Goodyear Airplane, 8, $42.00

A-999-999, Goodyear Airplane, 6, $121.50

The A-36 finger spinner with a corkscrew is not real common but $127.50 seemed high. The Goodyear airplane is somewhat common and again I am not sure why one went crazy at $121.50. The $40-50 range is normal for this opener.

B-001-001, Ben Brew, 8, $174.95

B-001-013, Hoster-Columbus, 8, $158.50

B-001-021, Fuhrmann & Schmidt (No Paint), 6, $152.00

B-001-023, Michel, 6, $154.01

B-001-029, Burkhardt (No Paint), 6, $135.00

B-002-006, Hamms, 8, $306.00

B-002-006, Hamms, 4, $176.00

B-002-008, Menks Brass BIN, 6, $200.00

B-002-035, Bangor Hussa, 6, $159.49

B-002-038, Heil, 6, $340.00

B-002-043, Eagle, 6, $127.50

B-002-047, Hanley, 8, $153.50

B-004-002, Scheidt (Brass), 6, $202.49

Lots of good painted openers the past two quarters. The B-2-38 Heil went high at $340.00 but is a very desirable B-2. The one Hamms B-2 at $306.00 was high for an opener that can be found in average condition without too much trouble but then again Hamms items are always hot.

Other prices shown are in line with what they should bring except for the B-4-2 Scheidt. A $20-25 opener on a good day brings $202.49. That is really unbelievable.

B-009-004, Hoster-Columbus (3 Examples), 6, $116.49

B-018-333, Iowa, 6, $184.50

B-018-638, Ontario, 6, $104.06

B-018-8UL, Fremont Brewing "Pilsener", 6, $127.50

B-021-487, Hyde Park, 6, $103.49

B-023-186, Breunig You Pay Spinner, 6, $200.00

The B-9-4 Hoster was part of the A-34-4 collection and most lots sold by the seller did very well. Three B-9s at $116.49 is a fair price. The next four B-18s and B-21s were high versus previous sales but then all are hard to find. I have owned three B-23-186 Breuning “you pay” spinner openers. I sold the two extras for $25 and $40. Looks like I left some money on the table.

B-035-8UL, Goebel Brewing Co Detroit, 8, $88.84

B-035-999, Drink Coca-Cola, 8, $169.49

B-091-001, Hoster-Columbus (3 Examples), 8, $457.00

The B-35 Goebel was in great shape and being unlisted I assumed a $100 opener easily. It got close. I was runner-up on the B-35 Coca-Cola opener. One I had not seen before and it was in great condition. The B-91-1 Hoster was again part of the Hoster collection sold in August. I was trying to bid at $200 for the three examples. Not even halfway with my top bid.

C-001-005, Schreiber Manru, 4, $179.15

C-013-247, North Pole Bottle, 6, $294.98

D-016-UL, The Grasser & Brand Brewing Co / XXX TOLEDO-BEER, 6, $405.01

The C-1-5 Schreiber was in pretty rough shape for a C-1 and still went high at $179.15. The C-13-247 North Pole was from Tom Gormally's collection and two extremely serious West Virginia collectors went head to head. The final price of $294.98 was really high for this one. The D-16-UL was an example of your editor betting the house on one opener. I really wanted this one but $405.01 was crazy as third place was at $230. A special thanks to my Iowa buddies for making the high final result possible.

“Opener and eBay Trivia” (“BIN” Buy-It-Now & “DNMR” Did Not Meet Reserve)

E-004-143, Schneider Fairview (Most likely an E-27 or an F-6 and not an E-4), 4, $72.99

E-017-004, Rock Island, 6, $116.49

F-006-046, Aurora, 8, $116.49

F-006-UL, Escanaba Brewing Co., 6, $93.00

F-032-004, Hamm, 6, $108.89

The E-4-143 Schneider is the only example known and someone drilled a hole and rounded off the non-opener end. Opener and shaft look similar to an E-27 but it could be a chopped up F-6. Price for the E-17-4 Rock Island is about what an E-17 goes for, $100. The more common ones anyway. A couple of tough F-6s and I lost out again on the F-6-46 Aurora but won the F-6 Escanaba. Final prices are about what they are worth. The F-32-4 Hamms seemed a little high but then again it is a Hamms advertising piece.

FBOC-024, Mexican Cactus (On an Ashtray) (BIN), 8, $110.00

FBOC-044, Black Caddy (Cast Iron w/ Patent #86603), 8, $300.00

FBOC-429, Coyote, 8, $225.00

Some prices shown for figural cast iron openers. Mexican Cactus openers can go up to $200. The Black Caddy opener in cast iron and with a patent date is on the money. The Coyote opener is one that used to bring a lot more. Times have definitely changed for figural cast iron. A lot of neat openers FBOC collectors chase after are around but figuring a fair price is another story anymore.

G-009-036, Kochs, 8, $208.00

H-004-999, Calgary Brewing & Malting, 6, $127.50

H-008-019, Atlantic (Tavern Scene), 6, $129.49

H-008-019, Atlantic (Tavern Scene), 8, $126.99

Over the years I have shown three results for the G-9-36 Kochs. In 2003 it sold for $26 and then in 2007 it realized $62. It really jumped this time but the latest sale was for one in great condition but $208 is a lot for a G-9. A Canadian collector was selling some very nice Canadian beer openers and any that were from Calgary Brewing garnered some deep pocket interest. Not sure why a $40-60 H-8-19 Atlantic litho opener would sell for these two prices. Just some bidders gone wild.

K-012-001, Lone Star, 8, $250.00

L-002-015, Molter (Corkscrew Not Pinned In), 6, $299.00

L-002-015, Molter (Corkscrew Not Pinned In), 4, $187.50

L-004-081, Hamms Souvenir of Chicago IL, 8, $202.49

Time and again the K-12-1 Lone Star brings top dollar and at $250 that is good money for one as it has sold for $500. Not that hard to find one and not sure why people love this one so much but they do! L-2 corkscrew bottles saw some heated action for the Molter What Cheer Beer one. Two sales and both had the screw laying loose beside the case. The $299 one had actually sold for over $400 but must have been returned and brought the $299 price when resold. Another nice Hamms opener and another high final price. You have to love them Hamms collectors. They are not cheap.

M-002-019, Rising Sun See-Bo (BIN), 6, $150.00

M-003-027, Trommers, 8, $446.41

M-019-999, Texaco, 6, $170.39

M-073-010, Kessler (Best Offer), 8, $300.00

N-043-009, Schlitz & Hamms, 6, $127.50

N-054-001, Blatz, 6, $257.99

N-078-001, Gold Top, 8, $153.50

The M-2-19 Rising Sun was nice except for a 1/2” chip under the opener lip. A tough M-2 to find and someone jumped on the Buy-It-Now price of $150. I still can't believe the M-3-27 Trommers brought $446.41. It was in very nice condition but after the auction I found out the buyer had bought it for a TRADER!!! I am sure someone will step forward but I can tell you the new owner is looking for RARE Pennsylvania beer openers for it. One muddler result and the Texaco brass muddler has always sold well. Corkscrew sliders are always popular but the M-73-10 Kessler selling for $300 on a best offer seemed high. Most are in the $175-$225 range if in nice condition. Another Hamms result and this is a hard knife to find in this style (N-43). The N-54-1 Blatz knife is made by Remington and was in average condition and brought a strong price at $257.99. Watch fobs are popular with collectors and the N-78-1 Gold Top did not disappoint at $153.50.

O-002-030, Hamms, 8, $204.49

O-004-003, Gibbons (MIB) (BIN), 10, $24.99

O-004-CAN, Calgary Brewing & Malting, 6, $213.49

O-005-028, Miller, 4, $144.27

O-006-019, F & S Beer & Ale, 8, $265.00

O-006-999, Jayhawk Orange, 10, $362.25

O-502-999, Coca-Cola, 8, $609.99

O-502-999, Delaware Punch, 8, $595.00

O-505-999, Big Bill (BIN), 8, $375.00

O-505-999, Big Boy (Best Offer), 8, $375.00

The Erickson painted wall mounts (O-2s & O-6s) continue to be sold on eBay but the numbers are slowing down some. The brand names are all over the place and most have nice graphics and nice final prices. A huge quantity of the O-4-3 Gibbons Never-Chip wall mount was found years ago and the supply seems to be endless. Some nice Starr openers were offered and prices across the board for

“Opener and eBay Trivia” (“BIN” Buy-It-Now & “DNMR” Did Not Meet Reserve)

Starr that were original and in very good or better condition brought excellent prices.

P-026-012, Anheuser-Busch (Blue & Red Handles), 6, $677.00

P-170-001, Pabst (Red Enamel), 8, $292.50

Two more knife results and the P-26-12 Anheuser-Busch knife had a unusual color combination handle and thus the final price finished at $677.00. Our JFO knife collector in Belleville, Il., Bob Sudduth, got a great buy on the P-170-1 Pabst knife. It was in great condition and $292.50 was a steal.

R-004-001, Iroquois, 8, $154.49

R-004-001, Iroquois (Missing Lighter), 4, $100.00

R-008-001, Kaiers, 6, $350.00

R-008-001, Kaiers, 6, $325.00

R-999-999, Loyal Products Football Helmet New Orleans Saints, 8, $256.93

R-999-999, Scott Products Hockey Skate Detroit Red Wings, 8, $255.36

Iroquois lighter figurals had settled below $100 but are showing renewed interest. One bringing $100 and missing the lighter is high though it is not that hard to replace the lighter. Two results for the R-8-1 Kaiers cast iron wall mount. A One time $600-800 opener and selling in the $300 range is a good result anymore. Another area I have been tracking are the Scott Product (opener in the base) figurals and Hockey Shoe/Puck openers are very popular. Usually $100 will buy most any of them and a desirable team will bring higher prices. The football helmet openers are not as popular as a rule but the one with a New Orleans Saints logo saw very strong interest.

Z-Corkscrew, English 19thC Majesty's Royal Letters Suho Patent, 6, $27,971.04

Z-Corkscrew, English 19thC Thomas Dowler V Serpent Brass Patent Corkscrew, 6, $5,996.96

Two outstanding corkscrew results from eBay but for the most part the ICCA auction is where the “good stuff” is being sold. I think the Suho Patent at $27,971.04 may have been an eBay record for a corkscrew. If not it was close to being one. The corkscrew category occasionally has some fine examples but now mostly contains low end and newer corkscrews.

Ebay did not make too many changes the past six months but one big change coming is PayPal will become a separate company. This was eBay’s big money maker so we will see how the auction side does in the next year or two. It is still the best place to usually get the most money for a collectible item. Until the next issue keep looking, bidding and buying.

D-16-2 Grasser & Brand Brewing Co XXX Toledo-Beer. I paid $405.01 (Don't forget the penny)

E-4-143 Schneider Fairview Brewery

One of the openers I bought recently was the E-4-143 Schneider (opener at the bottom). It is listed as an E-4 but is obvious that someone drilled a hole and rounded the end off. It is most likely was a F-6 (top opener shown for style) but I think it may have been an E-27 (middle opener). Larry Moter had seen the opener and thought it was originally a F-6. I have never seen another opener of any kind from “August Schneider Fairview Brewery” Reading, Pa. Does anyone have any history on the brewery or possibly the an original unchanged version of the opener? It was not cheap at $72.99 but like the fake “sucker” opener from Toledo (page 10) it caught my eye.

A Most Unusual American Combination Culinary Utensil!
Joe Young

This unmarked spectacular handmade silver presentation piece was found in !
New Hampshire. !
Overall length is 10.25 inches!

The hinged stained presentation box is converted from a 5 pound wooden ! Clover Bloom cheese box. It has a black velour lining - very fitting for such a magnificent piece. !

As you can see, the piece is composed of a knife, fork and spoon as well as a corkscrew, can opener and bottle opener.!

It was probably made in the 1930's or 1940's. !
Who made it and who was it made for is unknown.!
Any suggestions or comments would be welcomed.!

Corkscrew collectors from England, France, Europe, and the United States had two chances to buy the rare Charles Osborne corkscrew patented in 1839. In November 2014 one sold on eBay in France for $27,689 (below). It may have been made by Matthew Boulton. A day later in Colchester, a corkscrew with engraving that included the name J. Ovenston was sold. He was known to make souvenirs from wood and iron from the Old London Bridge. Although a part was not working, a European collector bought the corkscrew for $74,976 (right). It was thought there was only one example of the corkscrew still in existence until these two appeared. Osborne did not make much money from his invention. He died at age 28 from tuberculosis, just 6 months after he filed for a patent.

Doug Cooke never thought he'd find a better bottle opener than the hefty old hunk of Miller-branded brass given to him by his sister. For 17 years-, Cooke used it to crack almost every beer he drank. Then Cooke—a design consultant who's worked on everything from Sloan toilets to Logitech web cams and Lenovo laptops—had an idea.

CARVED OPEN: Doug Cooke in his workshop. - Photos by Adam Wickham

"Before Prohibition, almost every town had its own brewery and they used to promote themselves by having their own bottle openers," he says. "It adds to the ceremony of opening and enjoying an excellent beverage. One day I thought, 'Hey, I bet I could do this in Portland, because it's the center of craft brewing and all things local,' so I set out to see if there were any interested customers and to identify foundries and polishers."

Portland is indeed a hotbed of local beer—as you'll see in WW's second annual Beer Guide, an 84-page glossy released today—and so, a decade on, Open Manufacturing is a small-scale success, making openers for breweries like Deschutes, Stone, BridgePort and McMenamins. Cooke's openers are intricately designed works of art—heavy pieces of brass, bronze or zinc retailing for about $35. The butt end of his openers are extra heavy, a design throwback to the days before refrigeration.

"Old, vintage openers used to have a ball end on the back side to smash ice blocks because they had to smash ice chips to keep the beer cold," Cooke says. "Having that at the end of the handle sort of really helps you open the bottle—it's a counterbalance it has on the back end. You want one single, confident motion when you're opening a beer. I think a lot of cheaper openers sort of slip, and you don't have one single, confident motion."

Cooke, who works for Tinder, a design consultancy, and who used to work for Portland's Ziba, which designs everything from Heinz ketchup bottles to KitchenAid's espresso machine, says a good opener is heavy and cool—but not cold—to the touch.

"Whenever anyone picks one up, the first thing they say is, 'Wow, you could really whack someone with this,'" he says. "And they're easy to pick up. There are a lot of stamped stainless-steel ones, but those are flat and awkward to pick up."

Cooke has mostly worked in expensive metals like brass and bronze, but has recently found a foundry that will do cast iron, which is "incredibly less expensive" depending on the metal market at the time. "It's kind of like buying market fish," he says.

"My first cast-iron opener is out this year for a brewery in California," he says. "The foundry for that one is in Silverton—it's an amazing 123-year old foundry that looks exactly like it did 123 years ago—bags of sand everywhere and dirty guys working and shoveling—but they do really great work."

After doing work like that, a man needs a beer. Something local—opened in one single, confident motion.

OPENING ACT: PRYING INTO THE HISTORY OF BOTTLE OPENERS (1)

All About Beer Magazine - Volume 35, Issue 2 June 9, 2014 By Ken Weaver

The bottle opener traces its roots back to the late 1800s. Photo by Kinsley Dey.

Bottle openers, for most of us, tend to be taken for granted until those times when we don't have one. (You'll think of this the next time you're opening a bottle on the edge of a stump, or—please don't—considering using your teeth.) But our choice of bottle-popping tools also says a little something about us. Whether it's a key chain opener from a local brewery, or an antique piece with a square Prest-O-Lite hole (we'll get to that), there's a connection. And much like with beer, there's never been a better time to start paying more attention.

One rarely makes it very far down the bottle-opener rabbit hole before encountering John Stanley and Donald Bull. Bull started the Just For Openers organization, for collectors of beer-advertising openers and corkscrews, back in 1979, and Stanley has served as the head of the club for almost 20 years. Together they published a book titled Just For Openers: A Guide to Beer, Soda, & Other Openers in 1999, which, in tandem with their club's newsletters, remains perhaps the most carefully organized discussion of antique bottle openers to date. The book is ostensibly a pricing guide and categorization system, encompassing openers as simple as the single-fret wire loop (E-16) and as complex as the Sport Pal (N-69), a seven-function device that includes a fishhook disgorging, match scratcher and first-aid kit. Beyond the surface, though, the hundreds of bottle openers pictured therein also serve as a chronicle of breweries that have come and gone, accessories (such as glove buttoners) that today seem curious, and, if precariously, customs from the preceding 100 years of beer culture. That last point, of course, prompts a question—why only 100 years?—which brings us to the beginning.

OPENING ACT: PRYING INTO THE HISTORY OF BOTTLE OPENERS (2)

An Industry Born

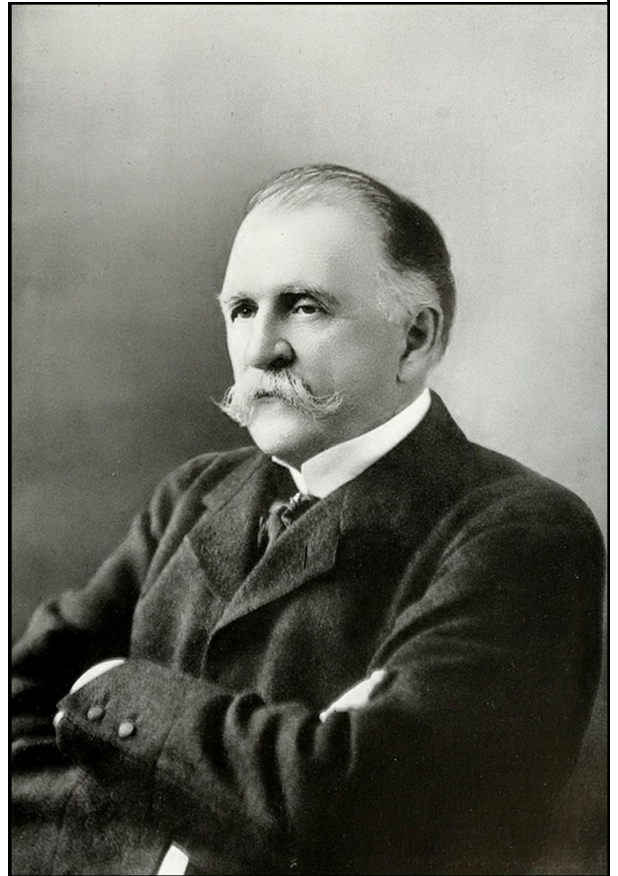

"The only way to do a thing is to do it."—William Painter

Approaching the end of the 19th century, glass beer bottles were generally sealed with either a fastened cork or a Lightning-type closure (which resembled a modern swing top). Available options tended to be costly, to the extent that both bottles and stoppers were generally used multiple times. (Imagine, for just a moment, reusing a cork.) The carbonated beverages within would often leak, and sanitation and hygiene issues were becoming an increasing concern. It was to this mechanical challenge that William Painter would dedicate much of his life.

Painter was born on Nov. 20, 1838, in Triadelphia, MD, a town that was eventually washed away for good by frequent flooding. Despite a modest upbringing (his father would work as a farmer through much of Painter's youth), he readily found work after completing his schooling, first apprenticing at a patent-leather manufacturer, then working at a leather-carrying shop in Wilmington, DE. It was around this time that his intellectual life started to take shape, as he participated in chess and debate clubs and served as editor of "The Every Monday Night: a Repository of Science, Literature, Sentiment and Fun"—which presumably had nothing to do with leather. The numerous moves of his youth would finally land him (in 1865, with wife Harriet and son Orrin in tow) in Baltimore, where his creative efforts and many inventions would eventually bring him and his loved ones great fortune.

His son, in his Reminiscences of William Painter, would recall that period with the elation of a child set loose in a toyshop. Painter had taken on work as foreman at Murrill & Kiezer's machine shop, providing steady income for the household and close community ties, and his son frequently amused himself with novelties his father had created in his own childhood: a potato popgun, a trick windmill and a ring that (via a handheld cylinder) could clandestinely shoot water. "In fact," his son reflected, "we never suffered from want of amusement." That early playfulness would manifest in more than 80 diverse patents over Painter's adult life.

His early patents had included a fare box, a counterfeit coin detector and a railroad-car couch. Painter's main patenting focus, though, would gradually transition into inventions more along the lines of flexible pump valves, hose couplings and "a new and useful method of controlling offensive vapors incident to night-soil operations and apparatus therefor" (the first, but not last, of his latrine improvements). The joint and gasket patents—all concerned, in general, with plumbing and piping considerations—found a natural application in bottling, specifically when it came to the issue of improving upon the traditional plug design. It was in April 1885 that Painter was issued a patent for his "bottle-stopper fastener," an elegant, wire-based closure similar to the common Lightning type. He received two other stopper patents that year, including one for a flexible convex plug that he termed the "Baltimore loop seal."

William Painter's original bottle opening device was called the crown cork.

OPENING ACT: PRYING INTO THE HISTORY OF BOTTLE OPENERS (3)

It was shortly thereafter that he would begin to change history. It was on Nov. 5, 1889, that Painter submitted the first in a series of three patent applications for a "bottle-sealing device." A second was filed in June of 1890, and the third (and most important) was filed just shy of one year later. All three shared a similar core design: a sealing medium in the form of a thin disk or plug, affixed firmly to the top of a bottle via a crimped metallic disk. The sealer was inexpensive, reliable, disposable (a total mind-blower at the time) and firmly attached. All three versions were accepted Feb. 2, 1892. The device was originally called the "crown cork."

One can, in a historically unlikely way, imagine the fallout in the subsequent months: a chorus of bottle caps knocked against stumps, countless visits to the dentist. Not exactly. It was Painter's third submitted patent (No. 468,226) that we'd most readily recognize today—its thin, cork liner eventually swapped out for plastic; its 24 teeth reduced to a standard 21. But it was Painter's second submission that offered a visual solution for getting the thing off. A dotted, crowbarlike device appears in the drawings, hooked atop an affixed cap. "Bottle-openers devised by me of the character indicated and adapted to the removal of sealing-caps by engaging with their projecting edges," Painter reflects, "will be made the subject of one or more separate applications for Letters Patent." The modern bottle opener had been born.

Technically, Alfred L. Bernardin (who history has shown was decidedly not Painter's BFF) beat him to the patent office by about three months, receiving a patent for his counter-mounted "bottle-uncapping tool" in July 1893. It seems not to have found a broad audience. Subsequent mounted designs patented by Harry Vaughan more than 15 years later—the first of which he would later call "defective," the second, "Never Chip"—suggested such types were easier said than done. Painter's own bottle-opener application was accepted early in 1894 (as U.S. Patent No. 514,200) and was a handheld design that remains familiar to this day. It also mentioned that the suggested handle design could further be used as loop-seal remover and a temporary bottle stopper (the latter still being touted as a major feature even in contemporary designs). Painter would go on to develop products such as an automatic capping machine, and by the 1930s his Crown Cork and Seal Co. made half the world's bottle caps. His cap inspired King C. Gillette, once a sales rep for the company, to invent the disposable razor. At the end of Reminiscences, his son Orrin quoted Shakespeare:

"His life was gentle and the elements
So mix'd in him, that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, 'This was a man.'"

"Budweiser Means Moderation"

In Maureen Ogle's Ambitious Brew: The Story of American Beer, the author details the climate into which Painter's bottling inventions emerged. In May 1893, almost directly between his crown-cap and bottle-opener patent dates, four important things occurred: (1) the stock market plummeted, (2) Howard Hyde Russell organized what would soon be called the Anti-Saloon League, (3) Anheuser-Busch filed a lawsuit against Miller over rights to the brand Budweiser, and (4) the World's Columbian Exposition opened. That lattermost (aka The Chicago World's Fair) saw the fierce, lavish and rather ludicrous competitive showdown between Anheuser-Busch and Pabst. The high-stakes status of the industry would see bottle openers become a natural, perhaps inevitable, advertising opportunity for the competing breweries of that era. "No one understood salesmanship better than Adolphus Busch," Ogle writes. "Anyone who met him walked away with a penknife or deck of cards, a corkscrew or bottle opener, each decorated with the company's trademark eagle." Painter's inventions were nothing if not well-timed.

OPENING ACT: PRYING INTO THE HISTORY OF BOTTLE OPENERS (4)

While the origin story of the bottle opener tends to revolve chiefly around the life of William Painter, the narratives afterward would disperse as easily as the openers themselves, which would be available in bulk for pennies apiece by the beginning of the 1900s. Today, an antique beer-advertising opener serves as a resilient historical record of how these breweries utilized this new invention. Breweries' advertising campaigns ranged from the straightforward "Drink Wooden Shoe Beer" to the suggestive "Tastes Imported" to the cynical "The one thing finished in this nasty world is P. B. Ale" to the inadvertently off-putting "The kind that won't ferment in your stomach." Anheuser-Busch produced Budweiser openers made from old beechwood tanks. There were glove-shaped openers advertising Pabst-sponsored boxing matches. Embedded inside some of the most elaborate designs were magnifying devices called "Stanhopes," which, when held up to the light, enabled one to view small microphotographs contained in the piece itself.

With strong advertising interest from the beer and soda industries (Coca-Cola wasn't exactly a slouch in this regard), the elaborate designs and included features of openers would develop significantly throughout the 20th century. There were openers that would sit flat on key chains for easy access (such as Augustus Stephens' popular 1901 "Bottle Seal Remover"), uncapping devices shaped inexpensively from a single length of metal (Edwin Walker's 1915 "Crown-Opener") and endless combinations giving standard openers further abilities (such as turtle-shaped openers with screwdriver legs and hybrids like the "Spoonopener"). Devices from the early 1900s often featured square Prest-O-Lite holes, allowing motorists to turn on their acetylene-gas headlights in the days before electric ones became common. Reliable wall-mounted openers appeared behind grocery checkout counters and in roadside motels. There were bottle-sealing openers, one-handed openers and openers that were bottles themselves.

And, as with most such things, there were people steadily collecting them. Art Santen (Just For Openers member #158 and the newsletter's editor during the early '90s) got started with collecting openers more than 40 years ago. His father had owned a tavern in south St. Louis, and after it was sold, all that was left was a ring of bottle openers, which he then gave to Santen. Art recalls this was during the time when yard sales were becoming more popular, and he began seeing examples advertising local breweries (such as the since-defunct Falstaff). You know how these things tend to snowball. On May 19, 2005, Santen was recognized by the Guinness Book of World Records for his collection of 32,411 bottle openers.

OPENING ACT: PRYING INTO THE HISTORY OF BOTTLE OPENERS (5)

Where distilled works like Ogle's Ambitious Brew and Tom Acitelli's recent The Audacity of Hops: The History of America's Craft Beer Revolution serve as carefully written recollections of American beer history, bottle openers tend to be more like the archeological record. The efforts of Santen, and the aforementioned Stanley and Bull, aren't so dissimilar from the patience and lasting curiosity required for piecing back together a dinosaur minus the pickaxes and pith helmets. It's both a hobby, and a duty of love. Santen also collects cappers, corkers and St. Louis-related items, and often conducts tours of his collections during the annual Just For Openers conventions. Stanley and Bull are hard at work as well, and their new book, Just For Openers II, is scheduled to be out this fall.

Donald Bull and John Stanley are the authors of Just For Openers II, scheduled to be out this fall.

OPENING ACT: PRYING INTO THE HISTORY OF BOTTLE OPENERS (6)

He amassed about 4,000 pieces before selling most and switching his focus to corkscrews. (Similarly to the beer-wine dichotomy, collecting antique bottle openers tends to be a relatively affordable hobby: Most older pieces still sell for under $50 while rare examples of centuries-old corkscrews can fetch tens of thousands of dollars.) Bull has served as photographer for nearly 30 books to date, including numerous titles on corkscrews and openers, and he and Stanley coordinated the main photoshoot for the upcoming book in early 2013. Their original guide encompassed about 900 opener styles, and Just For Openers II will incorporate about 1,600, many borrowed from fellow collectors around the country. The final product, like its predecessor, will be the most in-depth curation of openers to date.

While old openers are getting harder and harder to find in the wild (i.e. yard sales and flea markets), Stanley and others note that the craft-beer industry has afforded a new source of interest for avid beer-advertising collectors. While many of the contemporary designs pale in comparison when it comes to the durability of their heavy metal forebears (Bull had asked Stanley at the start of their new book project, "Do we have to include all that plastic stuff?"), numerous new designs have recently come on the market that take Painter's original idea in a truly unique direction (see sidebar). Whether pre-Prohibition or <shudder> plastic, each one offers its own solution to a problem that, when you really think about it, had to be invented.

INNOVATIVE OPENERS: Modern-Day Designs, From Haute to Handmade (1)

Hermetus
Producer: Monopol (Germany)
Highlight: Hermetically reseals an open bottle.
Specifics: The Hermetus Opener and Sealer—in addition to handling both standard and twist-off caps—has chrome prongs and a rubberized gasket along its underside that allow it to be slipped over the top of an open bottle, creating an airtight seal. Helps maintain carbonation, though using it as a bottle re-sealer does render it somewhat less useful as an actual opener.
Provenance: Though lacking the rubber-gasket snazziness, Martin Trolen's "Combined Bottle Cap and Opener" design patent from 1936 was perhaps 80 years ahead of its time. It didn't have a twist-off-cap remover either, because people had hands back then.
See Also: Other openers + Beer Savers bottle caps, Rabbit Wine & Champagne Sealer

Be Open
Producer: Anzen Markets (Seattle, WA)
Highlights: Can-shaped design, nontraditional movement, minimized cap-crimping?
Specifics: Founder and president Paul Cifka was fascinated by a similarly designed opener he'd encountered in Japan. The cylinder is pushed directly down onto a sealed bottle, a lever pops out from the downward pressure, and a magnet keeps the freed cap from rolling away.
Provenance: Possibly ninjas.

INNOVATIVE OPENERS: Modern-Day Designs, From Haute to Handmade (2)

BBbarfly

Producer: BBbarfly Inc. (Ontario, Canada)
Highlights: Butterfly-knife design sans knife, “flair beer-tending.”

Specifics: It’s based on the butterfly knife, or bali-song, which allows users to unsheathe it one-handed, requiring only a flick of the wrist. BBbarfly’s website offers trick tutorials for moves like “Skull & Bones,” “Chopsticks” and the “Transformer.” (Try not to break anything.)

Provenance: The Philippines or 18th-ish-century France, depending upon whom you ask.

See Also: Bottlefly Knife, Lagunitas’ Butterfly Bottle Opener and advanced-training videos

GrOpener

Producer: GrOpener (Denver, CO)
Highlights: One-handed opener, slightly unfortunate name.

Specifics: This patent-pending “grab opener” is arguably one of the more elegant designs out there: It has a circle for one’s index finger, a front notch lets the middle finger balance things, and one simply reaches the opener over a bottle while catching its cap with the back hook. A firm trigger motion pops the cap off.

Provenance: Inspired by a leverage approach that the GrOpener’s inventor, Mark Manger, saw while doing Peace Corps work in Ghana. Launched in 2012 through Indiegogo fundraising.

See Also: Rush3’s Kebo (inspired by Theodore Low’s 1939 patent), EZ Botop from Belgium.

Beer Stick

Producer: Beer Stick Bottle Opening Co. (Denver, CO)
Highlights: Simplicity, heavy-duty construction

Specifics: Thick, 8-inch wooden handle + metal bit + leather strap = a reliable opener that doubles as home protection. Company’s philosophic stance: “If counter tops were supposed to open beer, they would have called them bottle openers.”

Provenance: Simpler times.

See Also: Areaware Bottle Opener (similar premise, plus two magnets: one for catching caps, one for fridge adherence); alternately, the Art of Manliness site has detailed DIY instructions.

BROpener

Producer: The BROpener Bottle Opener (San Francisco, CA)

Highlights: Minimalist design, magnetic personality.
Specifics: The BROpener (also patent pending) takes a notable approach: It’s basically a hard, thin square of anodized aluminum. Its strong 3M adhesive attaches it to most surfaces, and bottles are opened by resting each cap against the BROpener’s ledge and pounding with a closed fist. Less mechanical advantage—but more fun. Its rare-earth magnet snags the cap.

Provenance: College.
