2020 JFO Convention #42 April 22-26, 2020 Quakertown PA

The convention is just a few weeks away. A nice group of members will be attending and I have the word out to many general collectors in the area. Three local breweriana collectors have agreed to let us visit their awesome collections. Daryl Ziegler of Macungie has one of the best beer tray collections in the country, Tom Raub of Allentown has an outstanding local collection plus several other nationally known breweries and Larry Handy has a great local collection and lives in Quakertown. Viewing times will be determined the week of the convention. The Hampton Inn this year has a separate display room with a connecting door to the hospitality room. This way maybe the ladies will not drown us out with loud noise (just kidding). Outside of the house tours no other travel plans and people can just go antiquing or sightseeing on their own time. The meeting rooms will be active from Wednesday afternoon until Saturday night. The Stanleys are looking forward to seeing everyone in Quakertown (Be There)!

Members Update

Chris Quimby of Vancouver WA passed away January 20, 2020 at age 60. Chris attended the Seattle Convention in 2018 and was widely known for finding and selling quality beer and general advertising items. He brought an awesome collection of openers to sell at San Francisco in 1998. Unfortunately he had several health issues and passed due to liver problems. (See photo update next page).

Don Musick of Clovis NM passed away April 10, 2019 at the age of 78. Don was a long time JFO member and collected all types of openers and corkscrews.

Bill Brunner of Mount Horeb WI passed away May 1, 2018 at the age of 79. Bill attended several JFO Conventions and mainly collected 2-Way openers (M-29 & M-30 styles). He was trying to get an example from each state. He was just missing a few states when we last talked.

Chris (below right) with John Cartwright at the 2018 Seattle Convention. Right a OoAK P-184-1 Pabst Davis Patent corkscrew & knife discovered by Chris in 2006. Far right: The only two H-1 openers I have seen with a bottle outline design as part of the advertisement. Chris sold these to me at the 1998 San Francisco Convention.

The P-184 Pabst is a One-Of-A-Kind as it is the only known beer advertising Davis Patent with a Knife Blade. Josef L'Africain is the proud owner.

Leslie “Glen” Enloe 11/26/1947-10/21/2019

After two visits with Glen last summer I knew he was having health issues but he told me he thought he was getting better. Glen passed on October 21st, 2019. Glen was a long time JFO member and collected CBOs mainly but also at times beer advertising openers. He started an early Cigar Box Opener newsletter and came up with an early classification system. He attended some early JFO Conventions and I met him at the 1995 St Joe Convention. At the Saturday show Glen filled an 8 foot table with Cigar Box Openers and it was a feeding frenzy as he sold a bunch of them. I watched as I was not into them at that time. He was a very kind man who readily shared his knowledge. In his later years he turned to writing Western Novels (search Amazon) as that was his true love. He was a great help three years ago when I revised the CBO Handbook. Our condolences to Pattie and the family. Glen did write a super little history of former JFO member Ollie Hibbeler’s grandfather and it is on the following page.

A PERSONAL REMINISCENCE HOW AN EARLY CIGAR MAKER, SALESMAN AND DRUMMER PLIED HIS TRADE by Glen Enloe

Nicholas Hibbeler (1881-1938), grandfather of Ollie Hibbeler, Jr., typifies the cigar drummer of the early 1900's who used cigar box openers, cigar cutters, and other premiums as viable advertising promotion pieces.

Interestingly enough, Nick Hibbeler didn't start his career in the booming cigar industry as a drummer. After his formal education, Nick and his brother Louis apprenticed as cigar makers in downtown St. Louis, Missouri. Ollie's father, a retired dentist and son of Nick, can't recall the name of the cigar company where the two brothers apprenticed, but apparently learned their craft well.

In 1910 Nick and Louis opened their own business: the Hibbeler Cigar Company at 5th and Clay Streets in St. Charles, Missouri. At the peak of its operations the company employed as many as twenty people. The names of three of their cigar brands were: HIBB'S, HIBB'S SPECIAL and EL SANITA. The price range of their cigars was 2 for 5 cents, 5 cents and 10 cents each.

Back in those days Nick more than just oversaw the quality of his cigars. He also acted as salesman and drummer for the business. Originally he traveled out of St. Charles into the east mid-Missouri area by horse and buggy. Later he drove a two-door Ford.

While traveling, Nick bound his cigar boxes together by leather straps in large leather pouches. In those days, life on the road wasn't easy. He didn't return home until ALL of his cigars were sold. His primary customers were saloons, drug stores and mercantile stores. Ollie's father recalls that Nick's favorite stops were at the saloons.

In 1915, Nick sold his part of the cigar company to his brother and moved back to St. Louis. It was there that Nick opened up the Hibbeler Wholesale Leaf Tobacco Company at 209 Pine Street. That address is now under the St. Louis Gateway Arch.

After a short while, Nick's new business venture became very successful. However, in September of 1923 a fire broke out in the warehouse. The resulting smoke damage was such that federal alcohol and tobacco agents were forced to pour kerosene over his damaged tobacco leaf stock so it could not be sold. The result was that Nick lost everything including his home. Fire insurance was uncommon at the time.

After the fire, Nick went to work full time as a drummer-salesman for the William A. Stickney Cigar Company of St. Louis. His territory was east Missouri and western Illinois where he traveled approximately 8 to 10 years.

After his health began to fail, Nick and his wife moved to St. Peters, Missouri, about 24 miles west of St. Louis. There he made cigars by hand in his home and sold them on a weekly route in St. Louis, St. Charles, Lincoln and Warren County, Missouri.

It was during this period of time that Ollie remembers his grandfather best. He still recalls how Nick sat there at his bench carefully blending together the different tobacco leaves and how he would roll out a special little cigar just for him when grandma wasn't looking and how she raised holy hell when she found out about it! Later, when Ollie visited grandma, long after Nick had passed away, he could still smell the sweet aroma of tobacco lingering in the house. Like they always say, those were the days....

 JFO Conv 42 Be THERE!

Spouse's Corner

By Pat Stanley, the Editor's Spouse

JFO Forecast – the Happy Front is Approaching Soon

As I write there is only one more week in February and it would be less than that if not for Leap Year! That means JFO will soon be here and happy friend reunions will once again create happy memories. And of course, the collectors will be anxious to see what openers/corkscrews are available for sale or trade...or just to let others see what they've added to their collection. There will be amazing displays that members have worked hard to show their passion for this hobby.

Knowledge will be shared. Good deals will be made to help others who need that last rare opener to complete a type they already have all the other known ones cataloged.

So many friends tell me how lucky I am that John has a hobby as men sometimes retire and are lost without that structure they had when they worked. I do feel lucky except when he just has one opener to polish at the work bench in front of my vehicle and he's sure none of the fine polishing wires will scratch my hood...just like they will never be found piercing my foot hiding in my socks. You better know where the tweezers are in our house. Actually he is one usually hopping around, screaming for help.

Not too wild about all the trips he makes to various shows, but thankful that Banjo is paper trained so I don't have to make trips out early in the a.m. and late at night when we are home alone. He actually talks to me more when he travels than when he is home. "Pat....can you find a Chipotle's near where I am?; there's a wreck, can you find an alternate route?; I'm tired, can you find me a hotel?; someone paid for an opener, please mail it; check our Post Office; did I get any JFO registrations?, any NABA renewals?....oh...and How are you and Banjo? or maybe he will just ask about Banjo".

And to think that the first time I went over to his condo, I did not see any openers, only a giant blow up of a beer can. He told me things were in a mess. The mess was neatly stacked playing cards in front of a cabinet where he was organizing them. No openers...not a one.

Where We (the most important people – Spouses) Will be JFO 2020

JFO Spouses....Are you ready to play Yahtzee and a new game Marcia is bringing called Phase 10? Yes...this is our space...a board room. Now the "collectors" may overflow some here, but we can make all the noise we want, visit, snack....have fun! I am bringing full 8.5 x 11 scoring sheets for both games and dice and a dice cup to make playing easier. Of course Banjo will be with us too. We are in our 4th training class, working on her manners.

A Little History of Quakertown, PA

Quakertown is a borough in Bucks County 15 miles from Allentown and Bethlehem. It covers about 2 square miles. It was originally settled by members of the Religious Society of Friends, or Quakers but was not known as Quakertown until its first post office opened in 1803. (Another source says that it was officially known as Quakertown in 1801 although post office was not established until 1803.) The town has 21 miles of roads.

While exploring things to do in Quakertown, some historical events kept popping up.

On September 18, 1777, during the American Revolutionary War, the Liberty Bell was stored overnight behind the home of Evan Foulke (1237 West Broad Street) as it was being moved from Philadelphia to Allentown.

This beautiful mural depicts the Liberty Bell arriving in Quakertown with Liberty Hall on the right and the Red Lion Hotel in the foreground where the cavalry escorting the Bell stayed.

The name John Fries and his Rebellion is another part of history that is documented in web searches and is the basis for the Highway where we will be staying at the Hampton Inn. His rebellion started at the Red Lion Hotel. France supported our country during the American Revolution for which we owed a debt. We refused to pay, saying it was owed to a previous regime. When things got tense with France, Congress raised a large army and expanded the navy. To pay for it, they imposed a large tax. It was this tax that John Fries rebelled against.

Fries and two others were tried for treason and sentenced to be hanged, but President John Adams pardoned all three.

Things to Do

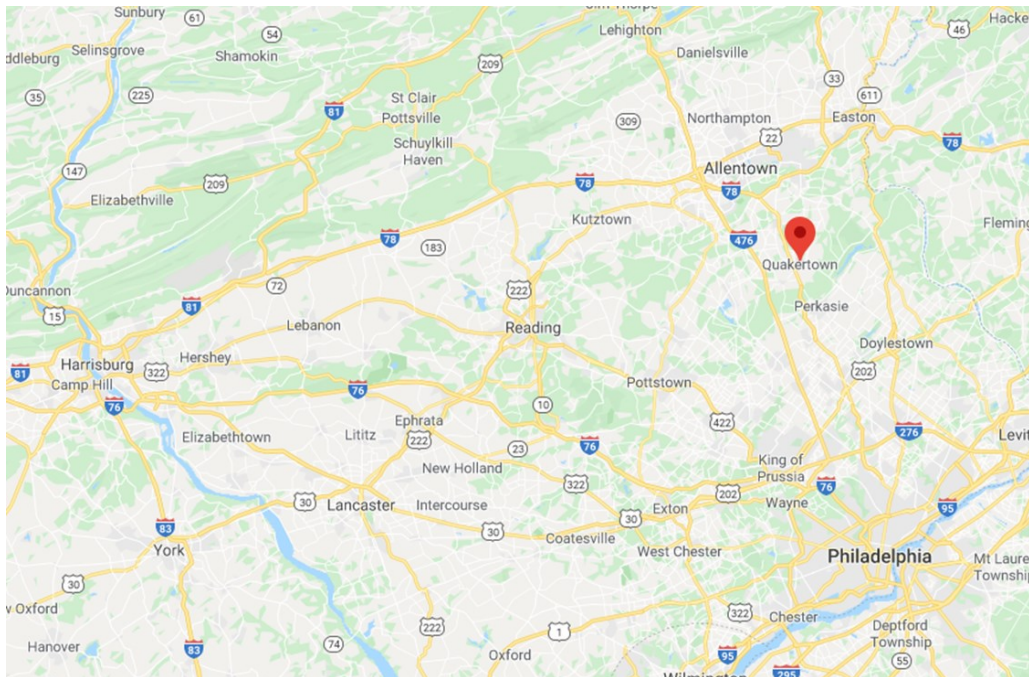

Need some fresh air and exercise? Nockamixon State Park is less than half an hour away at 1542 Mountainview Drive, Quakertown, PA.

Quakertown Farmers Market and Flea Market about 15 minutes away at 201 Station Road in Quakertown seems quite different than what I expected. Friday & Sat 9AM-9PM and Sunday 10AM-5PM. There is a Discount Grocery Store opened daily.

But what surprised me is a layout of the Farmers Market which included lots of things other than the typical produce. Things like these examples were listed...Just Stuff Gifts, As Seen on TV, Dollar Store, Socks Five and Deerskin Leather and much, much more.

Lehigh Valley Mall – 2 Level Mall that serves as the dominant regional shopping mall, located at 250 Lehigh Valley Mall, Whitehall, PA....about 20 miles from our hotel.

Need a few items from Walmart or Target? They are both less than 4 Miles away respectively at 195 N West End Blvd and 610 N West End Blvd in Quakertown.

Tom Raub and Al Seiders comments in RED (and Al's rating scale with 10 best) or at end of address. Really detailed comments are not needed for the Quakertown ones (i.e. Ernie Alich and I are unsure as to which ones are currently open or not open but it doesn't matter because they are all within 10 minutes or 5 miles from where you will be. As for Adamstown, it is the top place to go especially on Sundays and no detailed descriptions are needed because if someone is driving the hour to Adamstown they can just go up and down Route 272 (not 222) and hit all the shops to their hearts content. The northern-most one is Pine Hills (bad) and the southern-most is Mother Tuckers (not very good either). I would also add Slatington Antiques...about an hour north of Quakertown but worth going to.

John Eblen extremely impressive collection of a 1934 British Patent by Walter Greenway for a rotating cap lifter wall mount. I have seen a few examples of Coca-Cola opener but a very desirable O-501 Coca-Cola opener to find (top right) (see previous issue).

History of the Can Opener Revised & Illustrated by Samuel J. Hardman

Did Robert Yates Invent the Can Opener in 1855?

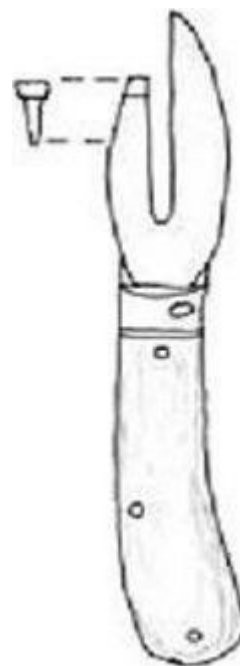

Many thanks to Fortnum & Mason and Dr. Andrea Tanner for confirming the 1849 date of their instructions for opening tin canisters (tin cans).

The original plan for this note was merely to illustrate a small collection of can openers in chronological order; however, a critical reading of Fortnum & Mason's 1849 instructions for opening tin canisters (tin cans) added greatly to its scope and content. It was never imagined that the results of modest research might test the early history of can openers.

According to Wikipedia (and other standard reference), "dedicated can openers appeared in the 1850s and were of a primitive claw-shaped 'lever-type' design. In 1855, Robert Yates, a cutlery and surgical instrument maker of Trafalgar Place West, Hackney Road, Middlesex, UK. devised the first claw-ended can opener with a hand-operated tool that haggled its way around the top of metal cans." Hence, Robert Yates is generally credited with inventing the can opener.

Tom Geoghegan's article, "The Story of How the Tin Can Nearly Wasn't," published in BBC News Magazine (2013), does not mention Robert Yates. Concerning the can opener, Geoghegan states that "while the can was making strides, the can opener wasn't. And the Fortnum and Mason 1849 catalogue included instructions on how to cut tins with a knife. The first tin opener was designed in the 1860s."

According to Wikipedia, the following illustration (right) depicts Robert Yates's lever-type can opener.

Details of Robert Yates's Patent of 13 July 1855:

"Improvements applicable to 'lock knives' and 'lever knives'; partly applicable to such surgical and other instruments as may be connected to handles by moving joints. These improvements consist in the production of a compound instrument which is both a 'lock' and a 'lever' knife, which, like the present lock knife, is made with several distinct pairs of 'scales,' so as to form several distinct parts which may be separated from each other, and yet may, by means of the locking mechanism belonging to such parts, be all secured together; the instrument is provided with a knife, fork, and spoon, all opening and shutting upon joints. It is provided with a lever knife for cutting or ripping open preserved provision cases and other uses. It may contain another lever knife or knives. The parts are secured by the usual locking mechanism, or by transverse slots in the scales into which the usual pins fit, and are secured by a spring slot or catch."

As stated, Yates's improvements consist in the production of a compound instrument. It does not appear that he invented the "lock knife" or the "lever knife." His 1855 patent does mention that his compound instrument, similar to a Swiss Army Knife, was provided with "a lever knife for cutting or ripping open preserved provisions cases and other uses." Indeed, Robert Yates does not claim that he invented the lever-type can opener.

History of the Can Opener Revised & Illustrated by Samuel J. Hardman

The first mention of an English lever knife appears in the Official Descriptive and Illustrated Catalogue of the Great Exhibition of 1851, page 591, Vol. II: "19 Yates, Frederick Green, Registered lever knives for opening preserved provisions, fruits, sardine cases, &c. The advantage is in the power of the fulcrum or leverage."

Further, "Class 21. Cutlery, Edge and Hand Tools. North Gallery: "19 Yates, F. G. 10 Winckworth Buildings, City Rd. Inv. and Manu.-- Registered lever knives for opening preserved provisions, &c."

English Patents: It appears that Frederick Green Yates registered his patent (#3356) on a lever knife can opener on 26 August 1852, several years before Robert Yates's patent of 1855. Hence, it appears that Frederick Green Yates registered the first English patent on a lever knife can opener and that he did so several years before Robert Yates claimed an improvement. Many thanks to Dr. Andrea Tanner of Fortnum & Mason for informing me that Frederick Green Yates was the son of Robert Yates.

Encyclopedia of Kitchen History by Mary Ellen Snodgrass (2004), page 160: "In the quarter century before the invention of the can opener, the navy issued each mess a lever knife for opening tins along with instructions for testing the quality of the contents." Ms. Snodgrass accepts Robert Yates as the inventor of the can opener. Hence, her suggestion that the lever knife used by the navy (1851) was not a can opener is absurd: the can openers of Robert Yates (1855) and his son F. G. Yates (1852) were lever knives!

Origin of the Lever-Type Can Opener

John Gillon of John Gillon & Co., Edinburgh, Scotland, was established in the meat canning business in 1838. From the following information, it appears that Mr. Gillon invented the lever-type can opener prior to 1840. To my knowledge, no modern writer has mentioned John Gillon as the inventor of the lever-knife can opener.

Chambers's Edinburgh Journal*, volume 9, No. 430, April 1840:

"It may be added, that, when the meat is to be used, the case can be cut up with a seaman's knife, or, more conveniently with what is called a lever knife, an implement invented by Mr. Gillon, and of which specimens are sent abroad with almost every package of goods. This knife consists of a handle, no more than sufficient to fill a single hand, with a small but a firm hook projecting from it, somewhat in the form of the blade of a reaper's hook, and with the same degree of sharpness, but with a close instead of a sweeping curve, the whole being of such a size that it might be carried in a waistcoat pocket.

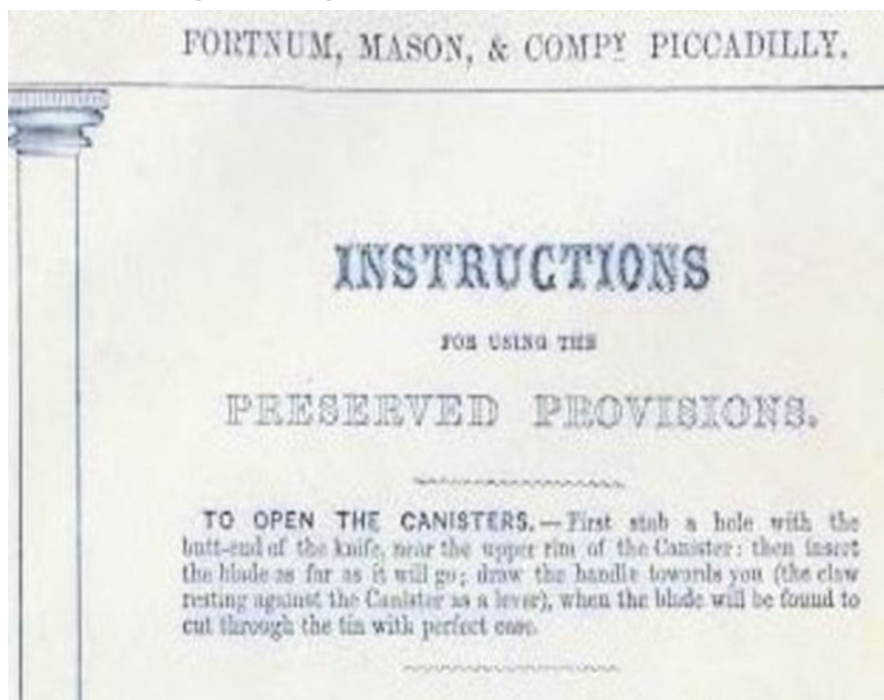

The point being inserted through the tin, the operator is enabled to cut up the case with ease, by using the fore end of the handle as a fulcrum on which to rest the instrument while the handle is alternately quickly raised and depressed." Hence, John Gillon, of John Gillon & Co., invented the first lever knife can opener before 1840.

The following versions of John Gillon's lever-knife can opener are from Timmins & Sons catalogue of c. 1845, plate, 130. With this form of lever-type can opener, the tin is cut clockwise instead of counter-clockwise.

Instructions for using the preserved provisions.

“To open the canisters. --First stab a hole with the butt-end of the knife, near the upper rim of the canister: then insert the blade as far as it will go; draw the handle towards you (the claw resting against the canister as a lever), when the blade will be found to cut through the tin with perfect ease.”

The “knife” used by Fortnum & Mason to open tin canisters (tin cans) was not an ordinary knife. One can’t “stab a hole with the butt-end” of an ordinary knife. Further, an ordinary knife does not have a “claw.” The “knife” described by Fortnum & Mason was undoubtedly a lever knife can opener.

Early Illustrations of Lever-Type Can Openers

A label attached to a c. 1845 can in the National Maritime Museum depicts a lever-type can opener with a claw, and a pointed blade at the butt-end of the handle. Further, the label gives instructions for opening the can quite similar to those given by John Gillon & Co. in 1840 and Fortnum & Mason in 1849.

“A relic of Sir John Franklin's last expedition 1845-48. An empty soup tin painted red with a small and a large hole in the top. The remains of a label are attached. Probably found in an Inuit cache at Cape Maria Louisa by the Schwatka Search Expedition 1878-79. Heinrich Klutschak reported that an Inuk had told the expedition that he had cached these items under a rock for lack of transport but was unable to find them when he came back. The label text reads: 'GOLDNER'S,,,GRAVY So...The ...put into...a saucepan whi... water and boiled about...s, then opened and...the ...may be turned into...for the purpose of being...a hole with the...insert the knife...W...& Co Printers.' 'GOLDNER'S PATENT' is embossed on the base. It was presented to the museum by Sophia Cracroft in 1892. Date made circa 1845.”

Courtesy of the National Maritime Museum.

Since Sir John Franklin last expedition did not leave England until 19 May 1845, the lever-type can opener depicted on Goldner's label must have been made before 1845.

History of the Can Opener Revised & Illustrated by Samuel J. Hardman

The following illustration is from a c. 1845 trade catalogue by Richard Timmins & Sons of Birmingham, England. The illustration depicts lever-type can openers; however, they are described as “knives for opening preserved meat cases.” According to the Oxford Dictionary, “can-opener” did not appear in print until 1862, and “tin-opener” did not appear until 1895. Again, according to the Oxford Dictionary, “lever-knife” did not appear in print until 1867. J. MacGregor, The Voyage Alone in the Yawl Rob Roy: “The pantry is beside them with..pepper.. mustard, corkscrew, and lever-knife for preserved meat tins.” However, “lever knife” is mentioned in Chambers's Edinburgh Journal, Vol. 9, No. 430, April 1840, and in Colburn's United Service Magazine, Vol.66, May-August 1851. Hence, it appears that before 1862 can openers were called knives or lever-knives.

The following illustration is from Timmins & Sons catalogue of c. 1845, plate 130:

(“Knives for opening preserved meat cases”)

The following lever-type can openers follow the design depicted in Timmins & Sons catalogue of c. 1845.

Colburn's United Service Magazine, Vol. 66 (May-Aug. 1851):

"Preserved meat for the navy. --The following circular (No. 76) has been issued by the Admiralty:--My lords are pleased to direct that the under- mentioned instructions be observed in the future, whenever preserved meat may be issued on board Her Majesty's ships and vessels.-- Instructions for opening canisters of preserved meat, and preparing their contents for issue:--1st. The canister is to be opened with the lever knife furnished for the purpose, and is to be cut completely round the body near the top. 2nd. Great care is to be used that the meat be not broken in being taken out of the canisters. 3rd. If the meat be intended to be eaten cold (it being already fully cooked), it may at once be turned out whole, upon the canister being thus opened; but if any difficulty should be found in shaking it out unbroken, a hole must be stabbed with a knife in the bottom of the canister to admit the air, and thus to effect the desired object. 4th. When the meat is intended to be eaten warm, the canister, after being opened as directed in the first paragraph, should stand in a copper of boiling water, immersed to about two inches from the top, for 15 to 20 minutes only, in order that the meat may become sufficiently warm."

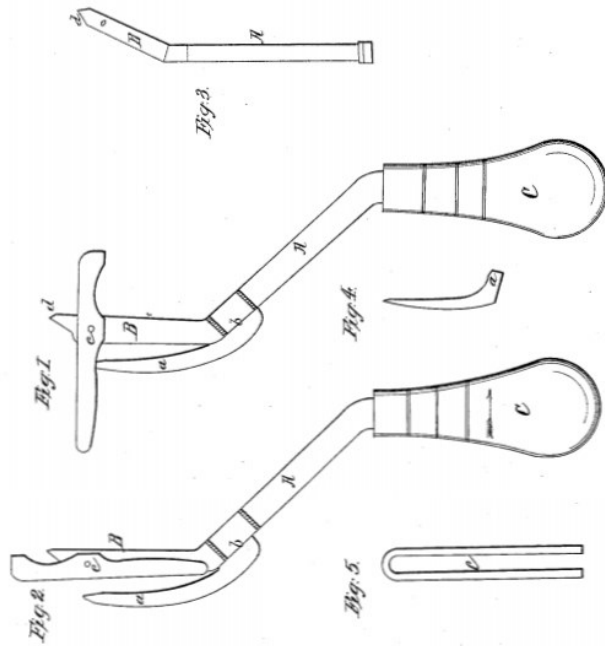

The following example of a lever-type can opener was made by J. Rodgers & Sons of Sheffield. It works very well and is quite easy to use.

History of the Can Opener Revised & Illustrated by Samuel J. Hardman

Ezra J. Warner's 1858 can opener was used mostly by shop keepers and perhaps by the U.S. Army during the Civil War.

The famous "Bully Beef" can opener of 1865: The spike on the bull's head was used to stab a hole in the top of the can. The spike was later replaced by a blade. It appears that versions of the "Bully Beef" can openers were made until about 1938. Indeed, the lever-type can opener is yet in use today.

History of the Can Opener Revised & Illustrated by Samuel J. Hardman

William Lyman invented a can opener that used a cutting wheel to cut the top of the can. His patent is dated July 1870. The above illustrated can opener works in the very same manner as Lyman's; however, instead of a cutting wheel, it has a sharp, pointed blade. The above example bears a patent date of 16 June 1867. I think Lyman stated that he invented his can opener in 1866; however, it was not patented until 1870. (Opener Private Collection 1860s).

Openers Private Collection 1870s (3 Wooden Handles) & 1890s (Steel Example).

Modern Can Openers 1920-1950:

According to Wikipedia, "the first rotating wheel can opener was patented in July 1870 by William Lyman of Meriden, Connecticut." Lyman's can opener was used in the following manner. First, the can was pierced in the center with the opener's sharp metal rod. Then, the cutting wheel was adjusted to fit the size of the can and fixed in place by a wing-nut. The cutting wheel was forced through the tin near the edge of the can and rotated around the top of the can. Lyman's design was difficult to use and was not successful .

Again, according to Wikipedia, the Star Can Opener Company of San Francisco, California, improved Lyman's design in 1925 "by adding a second, serrated wheel, called a "freed wheel," which allowed a firm grip of the can edge." The highly successful "Star" was followed in 1931 by the "Bunker," made by the Bunker Clancey Company of Kansas City .

Indeed, the "Bunker" copied the "Star" can opener quite closely and Star Can Opener Company sued the Bunker Clancey Company for patent infringement. The Star Can Opener Company patented the "Star" can opener in 1920, not 1925. Further, the Star Can Opener Company did not invent the highly important, second, serrated "freed wheel," as stated by Wikipedia and other standard reference. The important, second, serrated wheel was indeed invented by Thomas H. Gilham of Cortes, Nevada, and was part of his patent, dated June 1888.

The following 1868 ad (not shown) from the official catalogue of the National Exhibition of Works of Art at Leeds is of interest because Mr. Davis's "American can opener" and Robert "Yates's lever knives, for opening sardine & provision cases" are mentioned in the same ad. However, Mr. Davis's distinction between his "American can opener" and "Yates's patent lever knives" is absurd. In fact, Mr. Davis was a salesman and his "American can opener" was merely a version of Yates's lever knife can opener!

"J. C. Davis, patentee and manufacturer of the 'Excelsior' knife cleaner (patent granted 1865), and sole manufacturer and patentee of the American Can Opener and Yates's patent lever knives, for opening sardine & provision cases (patents granted 1855, 1866, 1867)."

“Opener and eBay Trivia” (“BIN” Buy-It-Now & “DNMR” Did Not Meet Reserve)

The Buy-It-Now option is really becoming popular with sellers on eBay followed by Make-An-Offer. It just means you have to look often and be the lucky buyer who sees it first. This past six months saw a bunch of Starr Wall Mounts offered for sale on eBay highlighted by the Bob Stahly Starr collection. He got some nice results.

many Starr openers with a bunch of long-neck “Big Boy” openers. Prices started high and just kept coming down when the same wall mount was offered time and again.

A final comment that most states started charging sales tax and eBay when you buy something including North Carolina. In fact I have to pay state and local Durham taxes when I make a purchase.

A Stanley seller from Kansas sold 10-15 examples of Above: G-5-UL New Orleans 4-X Beer, it was only $350. D-6-2 Louisville showing 3 variations 1) Louisville (1 L) 2) Louisville 3) Louisville (No I). Right side: Larry Handy selling Chris Solari an I-7-59 Schaefer variation Chris did not own at the Foothills Brewery show in Sanford NC (November). Below: a before & after shots of a fairly desirable Coca-Cola figural opener. You can get the rust off but will still have pitting and this opener has led a hard life. Not bad in the end but not great.

An unbelievably rare and essentially undocumented Rainier bottle opener with a baseball pitcher at the top of his wind-up. The opener has not been altered in any way, and is totally original although it has been slightly and lightly cleaned by me. The side B with the pitchers detail is slightly brighter and with no deep oxidation, side A with the Rainier brand name has some slightly deeper pitting. This opener came from a Napa Valley estate.

I believe the rarity of this opener lies in a few facts. The first is the simply wonderful design, the outline and recessed details of the pitcher are so shallow in the steel, that if there are in existence others of these I am convinced, and they saw very much use, those shallow outlines in the steel would have mostly likely worn down losing all this details. Also the practical design as a bottle opener. With the dependency of the pitchers feet to bear the brunt of the leverage for opening bottles, I guess that doing this would have literally tore the shoes by just opening a few bottles. This fact makes me think that this opener may have never been used, the legs and feet show no dents, wear or torque. The only really worn areas on the whole unit is the elongation to the lanyard hole, which also happens to represent the baseball.

Secondly taking into account the patent date of 8-18-14. This date is only about 2 1/2 months before Washington state declared a prohibition on the brewing of beer on 11-3-1914, although the law was not enforced until 1916. These close dates might have put a damper on the project of mass producing these openers. Certainly the owners of a 40 year old Seattle brewery should have anticipated this at such a late date.

State Prohibition Law, 1914 On November 3, 1914, after prodigious Anti-Saloon League lobbying efforts statewide, Washington voters approved Initiative Measure Number Three, prohibiting the manufacture and sale (although not the consumption) of liquor statewide.

I (seller) can see and understand that there is a chance that the Kirchner & Mante Company of Oakland California designed and made the opener, they supplied bottles to Rainier in Seattle. In either way, made in Seattle or Oakland, this may have been and most likely was a one of a kind prototype, sample or gift.

Particulars: The opener is 3 1/4 inches long of 1/16th thick hard steel. The pitchers face is graphically the weakest surface of the baseball pitchers design because of oxidation and some deeper pitting in the face's cheek and temple area as you can see. His right eye and even the eye lid and the iris, eyebrow, ear, nose, mouth and even the lips and nostrils are clearly visible with a 5x loupe. Shoe laces, shoe tongues of both shoes, stripes on the socks, belt buckle and cross-hatching representing the shadows of the uniform are very clear.

Opinion: 45 years ago I studied copper plate burin engraving as an artist. If you look carefully at the line work on this figure, you do not see the monolithic line impersonal character of stamped lines, but instead you see the lines left from a steel plate burin hand held engraving tool, with distinct entry and exit thinness to thick to thinness line work. Also enormous variation of line width throughout the figure. This truly is a hand engraved picture of a baseball pitcher, executed on steel. By accepting this as fact, it has to be seen as a one of a kind product by an artist/craftsperson. Even if another example exists, each will have unique line work, design subtleties and features. Most likely this is a prototype made as a sample or corporate gift taking into account the two companies worked together since the early 1900's. FREE SHIPPING, Bid with confidence, believe it or not I have been an E-Bay seller since 1997.

Editor’s Note: An amazing eBay listing with a lot of misinformation. The internet is awesome. Note: Opener shown from your Editor’s Collection. I have seen 5 or 6 examples of the “proto-type” Rainier ballplayer.
