Opener & Corkscrew Books
(Details On Website)

One of my favorite CBO (Cigar Box Opener) styles (BB-16). Henry J. Sommer (1837-1910) owned several cigar factories with the main location being at the corner of Juniper & 10th in Quakertown. This is a heavy blade type CBO.

2021 JFO Convention #42 September 22-26, 2021 Quakertown PA

The 2021 JFO Convention is full steam ahead. Make your plans to attend as the country returns to normal. This convention promises to have a great turnout as everyone has been couped up and ready to get out and enjoy life. We have two meeting rooms reserved. Larger room (768 sq feet) will be for members to set up their openers and corkscrews with a smaller room (384 sq feet) reserved for the ladies and overflow for collector setup. The smaller room has a nice conference table with a couple of sofas. Both rooms are just past the front desk. The rooms will be ready after lunch on Wednesday and setup continues through Saturday night. Several house tours are on the schedule including Tom Raub (Allentown), Daryl Ziegler (MaCungie) and Larry Handy (Quakertown). Planning for actual times for the tours is still being worked out. The location is in the heart of Pennsylvania Antique country (page is published again inside this issue). This will be JFO's 42nd annual convention and unfortunately after making the first 41, Art Santen will miss his first convention. He is in an assisted living facility in St. Louis and has good days and bad days with his memory. The Hampton offers free breakfast each morning. A diner is next door and across the highway is a McDonald's. Make Quakertown your next stop on the JFO Convention tour. Ollie Hibbeler (unfortunately deceased but his famous words) and Banjo Stanley say BE THERE!

New Book by Donald A. Bull & John R. Stanley, Order on Amazon

Anheuser-Busch Knives & Match Safes: The Collection of Robert Sudduth

Donald A. Bull
John R. Stanley

There have been enough books and articles written about Anheuser-Busch to fill a truckload of beer crates filled with them. At the recent Blue-Gray Breweriana Show, John mentioned the progress of this book to a fellow collector who responded, “I thought everything that could be written has already been written about Anheuser-Busch.” John explained how this one would be very different which brought the response, “I will be buying the book.”

The book has been completed – all 250 pages of it. The story of the knives and match safes is told through newspaper and magazine articles published during their popular years accompanied by the over 1000 photographs. You will not only be informed, you will be entertained.

The book is now available for purchase. Search the title Anheuser-Busch Knives & Match Safes on Amazon.com.

Fil Graff (age 82) passed away October 21, 2020. I first met Fil at one of the JFO Conventions 30 years ago and he was a dealer and always had good merchandise including openers. You learned quickly Fil had a sharp mind and knew a lot about the old breweries.

Jack Ford told me that he first met Fil through "Tin Types" (which is now Antique Advertising Association of America) where he called himself "Professor Knotseaux Halfvast". Jack said he was really fun to correspond with!!

We regularly met each year at the Blue-Gray beer show where Fil always worked the registration desk. One of my memories was the 1995 show where Pat and I drove up in a snowstorm with her upset at my attempt to drive fast. When I finally walked in the hotel Fil was walking near me twirling an opener on his finger. He said, "I got the best opener here already, you can go back home." It was a hard to find A-47-1 Krug figural from Nebraska.

It was around this time when Fil became the NABA BC Editor. He was a great editor who put his heart into each issue. Fil started the first NABA website and after getting it up and going convinced me I could manage it and did for a few short years with his encouragement. Fil had learned web coding all on his own to help the hobby out.

Fil was a collector until his retirement in the early 2000s and moved to Chambersburg, Pa. where he and Robbie bought an old farm. About this time he sold me his opener collection at Blue-Gray. Fil had a really nice beer type collection. The farm became his passion along with Heisey Glass. He had a wealth of knowledge on many subjects and always willing to share even when not asked. A great ambassador for the hobby. The last time I saw Fil was at the JFO Convention in Harrisburg in 2007. Robbie and he visited for old time sake.

We lost a ton of breweriana knowledge with the passing of Fil. Our condolences to Robbie and the Graff family.

Former JFO member, Joe Paczkowski age 72, passed September 14, 2020. Joe concentrated on mid-Atlantic area openers but openers were a small sideline for him as he was really into beer cans and other Breweriana. He was always a friendly presence at shows. Unfortunately his wife, Rita, just passed in March of this year. Our condolences to the Paczkowski family.

“Who Knew” You Could Reroute a Post Office Priority Package

A Connecticut corkscrew dealer gets an awesome Buy-It-Now on eBay for $25.00. As he is paying the seller online, she tells him her mailman is outside dropping off mail. She gets the mailman to wait while she prints the label and gets the priority box ready. Notice she offered free shipping to boot.

The buyer is watching the tracking the next day and notices the package has been “re-directed”. The following day he sees it has gone back to the seller. He asks her what is going on? We had a deal. She says someone offered her $10,000! They go back and forth and the buyer works a deal to get it for $8,000. Needless to say it is a rare corkscrew and most likely an American piece but could be German.

The buyer being a dealer listed it on eBay for $15K and then on the ICCA Fixed Price Auction site for $18K. He had stopped both auctions and listed in the regular ICCA Auction in November, 2020.

Not a story you hear every day. I learned you can “re-direct” priority packages (for a fee). In the end the dealer got $8,500.00 in the ICCA Auction so he made $500.00.

DESCRIPTION

This is an exceptionally rare piece. Per World-Class Corkscrews (found on page 210) “Corkscrew (Pictured above) with the “snail faces” lock on the shaft and hinged legs to rest on the bottle neck. The corkscrew has resemblances to Friedrich Kummer’s German patent, 14,531, December 3, 1880, or to the legs of Ernest Steinfeld’s registration 28,204, June 15, 1894. There also seems to be a connection to the “snail faces” of Charles Chinnock’s American patent, 38,147, April 14, 1863.

CONDITION

Excellent condition overall. Wood handle shows no signs of cracks splits or chips. The helix tip is complete and sharp. The legs are not loose and dangling but rather tight. Original plate appears intact.

Spouse's Corner

By Pat Stanley, the Editor's Spouse

This isn't "Where is Waldo?", it's "Where is John and John's Belongings?".

"Where is John?" He's on the road again after missing so many shows in 2020.

"Where are John's Belongings?" Read on!!

I'm sure you have read about Don Bull and John documenting Robert Sudduth's legacy, his Anheuser-Busch Knife and Match Safe collection by publishing a book with over 1000 pictures. John's main responsibility was to pick up the collection, take it to Don Bull and make a return trip upon completion of the project.

On his way from Bob's home near St. Louis to Bull's in Virginia, John was very aware that he needed to safeguard the collection. So, when he threw a jacket in the back seat with the extra remote to his Expedition, panic set in as he heard a clink sound. He immediately realized the remote had fallen somewhere, no where to be found (by him).

As usual I was summoned to see if an Expedition could be opened with a remote inside. So, out to test my older model Expedition. One could not open my doors with a remote inside, but don't know about his Platinum Edition Expedition.

That was good and John was taking the collection in the hotel at night, so all should be fine.

He called our salesman (Larry) we've had for years and asked what it would cost to replace the remote? $150!

Upon John's return to our humble abode, it was my turn to search every nick and cranny. You guessed it, I found it. I announced that I would only charge him $100, but you guessed it, I didn't get it.

Not much time passed before John headed to the Blue Grey Show outside of DC. I don't think he was even out of North Carolina before calling to tell me "we have a problem". My response..."How could we have a problem, I'm not with you?" And so I was to find out why it was indeed "we". The good news is that John uses sanitizer every time he gets behind the wheel. The bad news is that he takes off his wedding band.

Not a problem if not for an opening in the dash for the handle of a sliding drawer in the console to fit into when the drawer is opened. John forgot to put the ring back on, took off and the first time he hit the brakes it slid into the opening.

So John calls Larry. Can you find my wedding band that is somewhere under the console? Oh yes....but it's going to cost you. Cost is bad enough, but John immediately started having nightmares that they would never get the console back to look like new.

Surely he thought my little hands could once again come to the rescue. Once again I entertained our neighborhood standing on my head, butt up in the air, looking for the latest victim of John's travels. Fearful of destroying the massive electrical system crammed into that space under the dash and wanting to see if really there before pulling apart the console, the next brilliant idea (of John's) was to buy a scope with a camera and light, $70 invested in the quest to find his ring.

He thought he saw it one evening with vehicle in the garage, so the next morning we pulled his vehicle out in the sunshine to take another look. When he couldn't find the "possible" ring it was my time to explore with the scope. I don't give up easily, but much to my dismay, it was a futile search.

And so it was now in my court to write the Service Manager, explain the issue, the concerns and get an estimate. He simply responded for John to bring it in to look at. After that an appointment was made and another $370 later, he is once again married to me!!

I looked forward to the next time my vehicle was serviced to go see Larry. I told him that John had just returned from another trip and either doesn't know if he lost anything or he isn't admitting to it!

I did write the Ford Headquarters about this poor design, as John said he had heard of others losing things down that slot...or so he said to make himself look like he wasn't the only one..... Since we've owned more Expeditions than I can remember, I was hopeful they would have pity and reimburse him for the work. This poor design isn't considered a defect, so no check.

Good thing I have Banjo by my side when John goes on these long rides.
Whenever my phone goes ding to tell me he's stopped somewhere
She runs to the garage door thinking he's home!

Little Miss Banjo will be coming to JFO, finally 5 lbs at 2 years of age. She is cute, loving and smart when she wants to be. I take her everywhere I can. She is an ambassador of sunshine making people smile, especially us. We all needed that this past year.

Constructed in 1873, by unknown builders, Sheard's Mill Covered Bridge spans Tohickon Creek. One of Bucks County's longer bridges, it is 130 ft long and 15 ft wide. The one span bridge uses the Town Truss and is painted the traditional red with a white entry, or portal Many covered bridges were built near mills for the convenience of farmers. In this situation, the mill was built by David Sheard in 1835 and is still standing. During the 20th century, John Clymer owned the mill and continued to grind grain for feed and apples for cider until 1965. The mill, is on the National Register and currently part of the Tohickon Family Campgrounds. Antique Malls & Flea Markets (Next Page w/ Comments from 2 Local Collectors Below)

Tom Raub and Al Seiders comments in RED (and Al's rating scale with 10 best) or at end of address. Really detailed comments are not needed for the Quakertown ones (i.e. Ernie Alich and I are unsure as to which ones are currently open or not open but it doesn't matter because they are all within 10 minutes or 5 miles from where you will be. As for Adamstown, it is the top place to go especially on Sundays and no detailed descriptions are needed because if someone is driving the hour to Adamstown they can just go up and down Route 272 (not 222) and hit all the shops to their hearts content. The northern-most one is Pine Hills (bad) and the southern-most is Mother Tuckers (not very good either). I would also add Slatington Antiques...about an hour north of Quakertown but worth going to.

DUDLY TOOL COMPANY Specialty Tool Similar To BICYCLE SPOKE NIPPLE Tool AS IS

After 14 years of searching for another, a second Dudley Corkpuller appears on eBay

Listing: Please refer to pictures for measurements and details. I'm not sure what type of tool it is. It is rare. Starting Price: $17.00 22 Nov 2020 at 3:30:49PM PST bookmastic \(6613\)

Sold: just-for-openers \(feedback score: 13334\) $35.00 23 Nov 2020 at 6:32:10AM PST

American adjustable folding prong cork extractor and crown cap lifter. Marked DUDLY TOOL CO. MENOMINEE, MICH on one side and PATENT PENDING on the other. U. S. Patent No. 847,744 was granted to Albert Dudley, Sr. on March 19, 1907.

First picture is latest eBay Dudley. Second picture down is one I got 14 years ago and traded to Don Bull to get a P-100-1 Rainier corkscrew back that had been gifted to me by Jack Ford. A year before Don had traded me four beer knives and a beer peg & worm corkscrew for the P-100. I bought it back from Don in 2015 before selling it to Tommy Campnell at the 2018 CCCC Convention.

The first Dudley's seller thought it was an opener only and the latest Dudley seller was not sure what it was. In both cases the blade with a button top was placed upside down in the body. Third picture down is the Dudley before cleaning Bottom two pictures are after cleaning (no Patent Pending on this one just stamped the Dudley Tool Co. Menominee Mich.)

To add a little more excitement, my Post Office said it had been delivered in my Post Office Box but it was not there when I checked. The clerk checked and it had mistakenly been placed in the box above mine. Only happens on a good piece and never on cheap stuff.

John Eblen "How to Date Starr Wall Mounts" (1)

Dating Brown Mfg. Co.

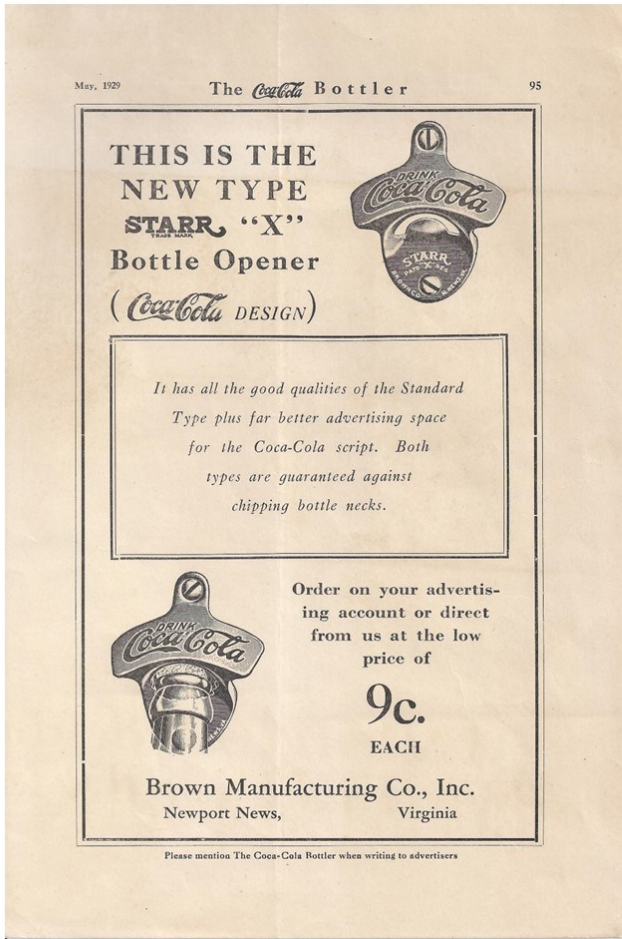

STARR "X" STATIONARY OPENERS

BY H. JOHN EBLEN

Brown Mfg. Co. has been producing bottle openers since 1925 in various shapes and sizes. One of them, the original marked STARR "X", appeared in 1928, being a side mounted, 2-hole with Brown's 1st original early makers label.

PATENTED 4-25

In 1929, of the May edition of the Coca-Cola bottler, an ad appeared advertising the redesigned and familiar STARR "X" which is well known and collected widely today. This makers label, as the ad shows, is what Brown imprinted on the new STARR "X" made from the 1929-1935 time frame.

PATD "X" REG

1935 marks a 3rd label change. Starr "X" becomes a Brown registered trademark name in later years. Openers marked with these labels were produced in the 1935-1943 time period.

PATD APR. 1925

PATEND 2333088

In 1943 Brown gets US patent 2333088 and changes the label for 4th time dropping Thomas Hamilton's date of April 1925 and adding Brown's newly issued patent number to the makers mark. All openers made carry the casting mark of USA on back. These new labels are produced during the 1943-1975 time period.

John Eblen "How to Date Starr Wall Mounts" (2)

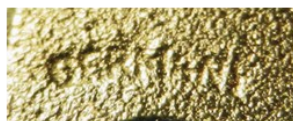

Dating Brown Mfg. Co.

STARR X STATIONARY OPENERS

In 1975, operational changes now moves casting to overseas markets. Brown's front label remains unchanged, with N. News, Va. still imprinted on front. However, the casting location of "Made in the USA" is now replaced with West Germany or W. Germany imprinted on backside. Openers with this new casting location, on the back, are produced between 1975-1989.

1989 Ownership changes for the Brown company around the same time the Berlin wall falls in Europe. The backside casting mark, now reflects this renewed unification by changing it from W. Germany to Germany. Brown's front label still remains unchanged, with N. News, Va. Still imprinted on front. Openers marked with this change are produced between 1989-1999.

1998 Brown company ownership changes hands again and the STARR "X" front label is changed for a 6th time with N. News, Va. being replaced, as company headquarters to Atlanta, Ga. being imprinted on the front label. China is now another casting location to join Germany that Brown Mfg. uses to cast openers and is reflected on the backs. Both German or China backside marked openers, using the new front label headquarter change, are produced between 1999-2010.

2010 and beyond, Brown's front label is changed for the 7th time in its history with the retiring of Patent 23330888 and replacing it with bottleopener.com. Atlanta Ga. Or Decatur Ga. might appear on front makers mark. All German or China marked castings produced with this change are made from 2011-present.

The 12 Voyles Rules of Knife Collecting "Edge Wise" by J. Bruce Voyles Knife Magazine October 2020

- Rule 1: Speed kills. Go slow. Do not get in a hurry.
Rule 2: If you do not know where you are going, it doesn't matter how you get there.
Rule 3: A good story does not always make a good knife.
Rule 4: If you have to explain it - pass.
Rule 5: Make sure everything matches.
Rule 6: Just because it is shiny doesn't mean it is mint.
Rule 7: Rusty doesn't mean it is old, it means it is rusty.
Rule 8: Ignorance is expensive. Be willing to ask for advice, but ask in the right manner.
Rule 9: Serial numbers and certificates of authenticity do not add value.
Rule 10: Three top considerations: Condition, Condition, Condition.
Rule 11: If you are 100 years old you will have some spots on you too.
Rule 12: This is a hobby. Enjoy it.

In the early days before organized knife collecting and trading, when the old timers would meet on the courthouse square on Saturday mornings, there was only one rule - and that was there were no rules.

There still aren't, other than the self imposed rules men of character put on themselves, the desire to be honest (or total disregard of honesty). Those are personal choices, not determined by a rule book.

But there are rules I've accumulated when it comes to buying knives, rules that I hope will assist you in the knife collecting experience.

Rule 1: Speed kills. Go slow. Do not get in a hurry.

When examining a knife for a potential purchase, no matter how much you desire the knife, no matter how long you have hunted for it, once you get it in your hands it is time to go slow. You have several steps you must go through before handing the dealer your hard earned cash, and it is much easier to find a defect and walk away from a deal than it is after you have handed him the money and legally closed the deal.

Rule 2: If you do not know where you are going, it doesn't matter how you get there.

That statement means a couple of different things. One is be familiar with the brand or the pattern under consideration so that you recognize an irregularity. Be an informed and educated buyer. Do your research.

Rule 3: A good story does not always make a good knife.

I knew a collector/dealer in the South who specialized in Civil War era knives. Every knife on his table was accompanied by a detailed history of some Confederate's service record, where he was born, his regiment, the battles fought, the wounds survived, awards received, and later life if he survived the conflict. The only problem was there was no tie between the knife and the story. He was good at digging up the stories, detailed and true, but there was no proof that the Civil War knife was carried by that person.

Having dabbled in that end of the market a few times I can say with certainty that knives attributed to a specific Civil War veteran are few. In 40 years of dealing and collecting I have owned only one knife that was accompanied by a photo of a Civil War soldier with that exact same knife in his belt.

I once heard a WWII vet tell me on the way back from a gun show, "I got $1400 for that P38 and the Luger," he said. "The buyer got all excited when I told them I had taken them from a pair of dead Germans on the Siegfried Line."

"I thought you were in the South Pacific?" I asked.

"I was," he smiled, showing me the 14 hundred-dollar bills. "But he didn't know that." Moral: Beware of stories.

Rule 4: If you have to explain it - pass.

This rule came from my old friend Paul Davis. When examining a knife and something is off, say the bone jiggling on the handles do not match, the pattern number is wrong, the blade is different from other similar knives, the word is "Pass." As Paul said, "If you must explain it you are already in trouble. Leave it. There are plenty more knives to buy out there." Harry McKay in How to Swim with the Sharks Without Being Eaten Alive said it a different way: "Sometimes the best deals you make are the ones you walk away from."

Rule 5: Make sure everything matches.

For instance, watch out for a well used knife with an unscuffed sheath, or a pitted and well used blade with a flawless handle. Dings on the blade of an old bowie should have similar dings on the handle, after all, they were supposedly in the same place at the same time. If they do not match, see rule No. 4.

Rule 6: Just because it is shiny doesn't mean it is mint.

Former NKCA President David Mullins came up with that one when as a teenager he accompanied me on Saturday morning jaunts through rural Georgia looking for elusive Case displays holding old knives. Used knives were not as popular as mint ones, and there was always someone with a buffer saying to himself, "The pits aren't that deep, I can take them out." Early on, getting in a hurry, we have all been taken in.

The 12 Voyles Rules of Knife Collecting "Edge Wise" by J. Bruce Voyles Knife Magazine October 2020

Rule 7: Rusty doesn't mean it is old, it means it is rusty.

For the uninitiated, just as if it is shiny does not mean it is mint, just because it is rusted and has pits does not mean it is old. There have been more than a few of the nefarious who would take a new fixed blade, stick it in their compost heap, and come back in a month with their now aged knife. When a blade is immersed in such an environment the pits will be the same depth, and in the rapid rusting that comes with it, the pits are shallow and spread out like a fungus. The appearance is called by collectors, "peppery." Take a look at the photo accompanying this article - that is what it looks like.

A genuine old knife with decades of use will have a variety of pits and scratches, some deep, some not so deep.

Rule 8: Ignorance is expensive. Be willing to ask for advice, but ask in the right manner.

Typically a novice collector sees a fine knife, is not sure about it, and asks the dealer if he may show the knife to a friend he trusts. The dealer agrees, and the collector carries the knife to another dealer he knows.

Meanwhile the dealer/owner can be found standing on his chair watching to see to whom the collector takes the knife. If the collector brings it back and says, "It is not good," before the day is over there will be a confrontation with the judging dealer.

Such reasoning means many dealers are hesitant to judge the authenticity of a knife. The way you ask is to hand them the knife, and say, "He wants $500 for it, and I don't know. I'm not asking you to judge authenticity, but my question is, if your collection needed this knife, in this condition at this price, would YOU buy it?"

By doing so you have let the dealer off the hook but still can get the answer you need. And the dealer has avoided a confrontation.

Rule 9. Serial numbers and certificates of authenticity do not add value.

Collectors like sheaths - be sure they fit the knife. There is a strong price drop off, for instance, in Randalls or antique bowie knives without sheaths. In bowies, one reason is it that is more difficult to fake a sheath than it is to fake the knife itself.

Do not become enraptured with low serial numbers or preserving the original shipping pack in which you received your club knives. Keep the knives protected, but the original pack does not add a lot to value when you resell. The insert sheets in reproduction Bullet Remingtons are important, to the point that I have even heard of some of those being copied and reprinted.

Rule 10: Three top considerations: Condition, Condition, Condition.

No one has ever said "I wish this knife was in worse condition." Always buy the best condition and expect to pay a premium for it. You will likely recover that cost easier than if you compromise.

Rule 11: If you are 100 years old you will have some spots on you too.

A vintage knife will have specks here and there, and still be mint by my definition. Unused is perhaps a better description. It is unrealistic to expect a 100-year-old knife to be as flawless as a Case stainless pocketknife made last year.

Rule 12: This is a hobby. Enjoy it.

As a lawyer/collector remarked when invited to what promised to be a contentious Board meeting, "I argue for a living, I collect knives for fun. When it stops being fun, I will no longer be a collector." Do not let your pursuit of knives override the real joy of knife collecting - which is the people in it. Some will be close friends, some will be characters who are always entertaining, and the dour and hateful enter and leave the hobby without ever knowing the true delight of knife collecting.

The Baker's Dozen - One extra: Counterfeits can be your own fault. Research before you hand over the money.

For years this was the bugaboo that seemed to endanger the growth of the hobby. It was more because things were so new, so in many ways we were all novices in those days. The NKCA formed a Counterfeit Committee in the early '70s to combat the scourge, with the assignment of going table by table and ordering the tableholder to remove any knives that were of questionable origin. The committee made it to three dealers before abandoning the project - as in those three tables they had two death threats and one serious threat of bodily harm short of a death threat, as the dealers felt they knew more about what was good versus bad than the committee.

A well-done book was written about counterfeits, well researched, nicely printed, and when the sales were not as expected the books were donated to the NKCA - who in turn offered the books free as a subscription premium. Imagine joining a collecting group and the first package you receive from them is a book describing the various counterfeits. The perception was the field was rife with counterfeits, and while that is not the case, it did scare a lot of potential newcomers away.

Counterfeits are nothing new. German sword makers faked British swords in the 19th century. There have been books published about the fake art works discovered in the British museum years after the experts gave them a clean bill. There are documentations of artists faking the style of famous painters.

In all those instances, the way to avoid falling into that trap is already outlined in the above rules. Go slow in your examination, gain advanced knowledge by research and observation BEFORE you start spending serious money, and do not be afraid to ask someone who knows more about the knife BEFORE you buy it. If you choose not to do your research, remember the old adage, "A fool and his money are soon parted."

Rule No. 12 says "This is a hobby. Enjoy it." The longer we collect knives the more we realize what we are also collecting are memorable experiences and friendships. While we have all suffered without knife shows for more than a half-year, hopefully soon we will resume gathering to share the joy of knives. The more important thing about knife collecting is not the knives, but the people we encounter.

Editor's Note: Same rules apply to opener and corkscrew collecting.

Art Santen How His Collection grew to 32,200 Different Openers

Joe Cardone Auction (Dayton OH)	1983	1996	$22,074.00	2,278
John Stanley Auction (JFO)	1994	2009	$22,669.00	1,146
A-Misc Openers House Sales & Flea Markets	1983	1999	$14,245.00	2,173
B-Misc Openers House Sales & Flea Markets	2000	2009	$8,758.00	840
Dale Deckert Cast Iron FBOC Openers	1992	1996	$22,200.00	720
Reynolds Toys Figural Cast Iron Openers	1990	1999	$1,660.00	43
Openers with Receipts (Total First 6 Entries)	1983	2009	$91,606.00	7,200
Openers with No Receipts (At $1 Per Opener)	1983	2009	$25,000.00	25,000
In Collection 32,200 (w/ Receipts 7,200 & No Receipts 25,000)	1983	2009	$116,606.00	32,200

Does anyone else track how they acquire openers with cost and when acquired? I know Art started long before 1983 (mid-1970s) so this may have been when he started keeping records and also why he told me he had over 40,000 openers (counting dupes). Art convinced me, he never met an opener he did not like as long as he did not own one like it already. He really had an amazing variety of openers.

“Opener and eBay Trivia”

- 1) eBay sales numbers are down some but really good openers sales were well down from previous six months
- 2) eBay is losing sellers as they keep changing policies and procedures
- 3) BUYER BEWARE-“Porcelain Fantasy” wall mounts keep selling for crazy money (they are fakes)
- 4) The Porcelain wall mounts could very well have shill bidding going on, always be wary when buyers identities are hidden, seller is protecting themselves and not the buyer

Vaughan's New Sensational
"O-G" Head
CAN TAPPERS

Greatest functional improvement in two decades . . . Another first by Vaughan!!

CHECK THESE ADVANTAGES:

- Less effort needed to open can
- Leaves smooth, safe edge—cannot cut lips
- Pierces and shears at same pressure—eliminates spouting
- Allows proper pouring—produces excellent collar
- Permits faster pouring
- Safer to handle—safer to pack

John Eblen owns the three “plastic” wall mounts above. None are easy to find and the Carta Blanca is especially tough.

The Coca-Cola “Hood” types on the right are the three known examples of an O-503. John pointed out that he owns the top left example. I owned the top right and sold it many years ago. The bottom example was from the former Thom Thompson Coca-Cola collection and is the wall mount shown as an O-503. It is clearly different. These are the only three examples of this Coca-Cola opener I know of. No other advertising known on this type.

John Eblen sent in mystery solution below.
