2003 St Louis Missouri JFO Convention

You can still make the 25th Anniversary Convention by calling the Ramada at 314-291-5100. We have at least 40 members attending as this issue goes to press. If you can't make the convention during the week, at least try and make the Saturday public show from 8AM to 1PM. Here is a preliminary convention itinerary.

Wednesday	Room-To-Room Trading
Thursday	Room-To-Room Trading Art Santen House Tour 2-4 Maybe 2nd Tour 4-6
Friday	Art Santen House Tour 10-12 Auction Check-In 2-3 Auction 3-5
Saturday	Public Show 8-1

Due to a high demand for the Art Santen House Tours, preliminary plans call for a third tour from 4-6 Thursday afternoon. So if people who have signed will consider moving to the 4-6 tour on Thursday as Art likes to keep the crowds at 10-12 people for each tour. You will not be disappointed.

B-3 I Falstaff & Griesedieck Bros

Double celebration this issue as a fairly tough type has two openers from St Louis. I have seen a few examples of each but both of mine like a lot of my Missouri openers came from Ray Braeuner's collection. If you keep your eyes open, you may see examples of these for sale at the 25th convention. In case you need to know it is pronounced "Greasydick".

2004 San Francisco

Currently I am trying to finalize plans for an April 14-17 2004 convention in San Francisco (Holiday Inn Fisherman's Wharf). The room rate will be $99 but we had such a nice convention in 1998 and the city is a lot of fun to visit. I will have final details in the July issue.

Don Bull's "The Daily Screw"

On February 10th Don Bull launched "The Daily Screw" at <http://www.bullworks.net/daily/>. Each day Don has an article on corkscrew history that occurred that day. Also he has a trivia question showing a small piece of the corkscrew featured in the next day's issue. Besides lots of great general corkscrew information, Don has managed to ruffle a few feathers of some his foreign subscribers with his "war comments". So he shows a postcard of two "French Women" firing a cannon. Its all in fun. Subscribe!

Member's Update

Jim Maxwell will be unable to make the convention because of prostrate removal. Please say a prayer for Jim and we hope he has a speedy recovery.

Note the Ramada is 4 miles from the St Louis Airport. The hotel does provide shuttle service. They are the only Ramada shuttle service at the airport (you may need to call 314-291-5100 to tell them to pick you up).

Description of A-5-15 Ideal Malt Opener being offered on eBay

Offered is a CLEOPATRA BEER or SODA BOTTLE OPENER from Cedar Rapids, Iowa. To my knowledge, openers of this type date from 1900 to 1920. Opener appears to have been cut from the same die that similar nude openers were. However, the etching on this one appears to be what I think is Cleopatra. Length is about 2 7/8". Other side states, "Ideal Malt Syrup, Ideal Food Products Co., Cedar Rapids, Iowa". Some plating loss, but no rust. Please see all pictures. If nothing else eBay can be a lot of laughs. This one had me cracking up. Cleopatra, yea right!

H-10 American Rice Beer (American or Canadian)

Vic Kroll listed an H-10 American Brewing Co Rice Beer opener on eBay and stated it was US. Dave Lendy before buying it, asked me if it American or Canadian? I have two in my collection and they both came from Canadian collections. I then emailed Larry Sherk (who probably has the largest collection of Canadian beer openers known as well as a great collection of general Canadian breweriana). He responded as follows, "Hi. I have this opener which I got at the 1991 C.B. convention probably from the late Bill Lovely. Its from the American Brewing Company, Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan. 1929-1933. Larry." I believe Dave got the combination opener/corkscrew for $10.00, so he got a good buy even by Canadian standards.

Norm Jay gets L-2 #21 out of 23 Known

Ex-JFO member, Jack Bandy, bought it on eBay and wanting bullet corkscrews more than this one, a trade was brokered between Jack and Norm by myself. Norm got the Joliet Bottling Co. shown at the right and Jack got 2 "bullets" he needed. Norm only needs L-2-22 Enterprise and L-2-24 Maier to complete the collection. Someone be a hero and bring both to the convention. Norm might even let you take something off his wall for trade bait (4,000 openers to choose from).

E-5s Just Shatter & Fall Apart

I have joined the "Ben Hoffman I Hate E-5s" fan club. Ben has had several of the handles just break off and the E-5 Acme Beer (only one I know picturing a beer can) (shown right) that I owned and opening my opener drawer a few months back to pick it up and the handle just fell into pieces. Thank you for super glue. Ollie Hibbeler says sometimes the manufacturing company just made a poor batch of plastic. It just had to be my one priceless E-5.

Blue-Gray Show Highlight

This is why you don't fall asleep with an open door at a beer show. Gary Deachman loses his ugly as sin beard. This nice lady did the world a big favor. Hopefully it has not grown back for St. Louis. Pam Doyle is doing the honors. If anyone sees her anytime in the future please thank her profusely from the bottom of your heart (and all JFO members' hearts).

I did buy Fil Graf's knife collection at the show but Mark Barren made the only scoop on openers. Former JFO member, Joan Wheatcraft, was selling her collection and Mark got into her room first. Nothing great but he did get several good openers. Of course Larry Moter and myself did some more trading but not many openers were to found at the show itself.

If you recognize the "veteran ringman" on the left, then you know it is our JFO Convention Auctioneer, Verne Vollrath. Picture is from the Auction Action Antique News of Wisconsin auctions. Auction was held in Janesville February 11th and the auctioneer was Dean George.

Thankfully Verne will be our auctioneer and I get to be the "ringman" (unfortunately not a veteran). Anyone wanting to place items in the JFO convention auction, remember we like items to be at least $10 in value and we will limit the number of items to three for each member unless you have some really good openers or corkscrews ($50 and up in value). Then you can place five items in the auction.

Auction will be Friday afternoon with check-in of items from 2-3 and the auction running from 3-5. Remember the auction is a lot of fun due to the talents of Verne and it can be an auction to remember if you bring good items. Sellers have the right to refuse the final selling price (Verne will say "Seller Beware").

On eBay this past month, the knife shown at the right was sold as a Faust Coffee knife (from St Louis) but the small blade was marked "Acme Brewing Co." A very unusual combination and one I had not heard of before involving a beer brand. Don Bull figured the blade could have been replaced or it was just a mix-up at the knife factory (German). Comments and answers appreciated. It always pays to check all of the blades on a knife. You never know what may turn up.

Spouse's Corner

By Pat Stanley, the Editor's Spouse

I am so excited about heading to St. Louis and seeing all the wonderful friends in JFO that it's difficult to sit still long enough to write Spouse's Corner!! I'd rather be packing and ready to head West. But, this issue is important as some members who are not planning on attending the 25th Convention may read the April issue and decide that they just can't miss it. That would be a good decision.

When I told Corkie that she gets to come with us to JFO, she asked if Bailey Young is coming too. Her eyes sparkled when I told her yes. Then she looks a little confused when I tell her that Bailey is now much, much bigger than she was in St. Joe, grown into a beautiful chocolate lab.

As I look over the January 1993 issue, a decade ago, Bill McKenzie had a note on the front page saying that Opener Trivia would not appear in that issue as he had been diagnosed with leukemia in September and was taking chemotherapy. He ended his note saying that he loved us all. JFO members have developed many caring, loving lifetime friendships with other members. Bill was someone loved by all.

Art Santen thanked John Stanley for the great job he did compiling the additions list and the assistance given by Janice Jarrell. At the time I didn't use any word processing software, so Janice had the challenge of teaching John the basics as an ice storm was fast approaching Durham, North Carolina. You know from recent national news that NC can't handle ice storms. We kept close watch on the weather so she would get home safely, but teaching John hanging indents was a stormy lesson in itself.

Dale Deckert was the collector of the month, so we learned how his Guinness size collection started. He picked up a very unusual bottle opener for his own use sometime between 1946 and 1950. The artwork, design and craftsmanship impressed him and the rest is history. It is quite amazing to think that companies gave away advertising pieces that involved so much work.

Everyone was happy I'm sure to see Opener Trivia return in April, not only for all the information, but because it meant that Bill was doing better. It was quite an article, one you might want to go back and read again. It told the derivation of the word beer from the Latin word "bibere" (to drink), the origin of the word "brewing" and descriptions of the various beers...lager, bock, weiss, ale, porter and stout. The article also told how old beer brewing is, about 6,000 years and included some very detailed history about the earliest mentions of beer and remains of ancient beer, beer mash and brewhouses. If you wonder when hops were added to beer, Bill knew that too, in the ninth century.

Another well-known Bill, Bill Pattie was the collector of the month. He was another can collector, turned opener collector. Even I know his main area of interest, Montana Beer Openers. After retiring from a 33 year teaching career, he became a full time Brewerianna enthusiast and collector. John is already that while still working full time.

July 1993 was the 100th birthday of the bottle uncapping tool. Sure glad that was just changed to bottle opener! "Just for Bottle Uncapping Tools" would be a little awkward.

It was a perfect time for Don Bull's article "Who Really Invented the Crown Cap Remover?". The King of Patent History had done his research. Prior to 1892 over 1500 kinds of bottle stoppers had been patented. Then William Painter and A.L. Bernardin both claimed to invent the crown cap and the opener. Ac-

Spouse's Corner (continued)

According to Bernardin, who owned a company in Evansville, Indiana, Painter worked for him and disappeared for a month, then turned up in Baltimore with his invention of the crown cap.

February 2, 1892 William Painter was granted a patent for the Invention of the Crown Cap and Crown Cork & Seal Company was founded.

Painter is also often credited with the invention of the crown cap lifter, but here are the patent facts:

March 14, 1893 Bernardin filed the opener patent.

June 5, 1893 Painter filed the opener patent.

July 11, 1893 Bernardin was granted patent # 501.050 for a Bottle Uncapping Tool.

February 5, 1894 Painter was granted patented # 514.200 for a Capped-Bottle Opener.

In the July issue we learned that Herb Haydock purchased his first bit of memorabilia, eight beer glasses to be exact, while serving as a cryptographer with the U.S. Air Force in Munich, Germany in 1951. He's deciphered the history of a lot of brewerianna since.

October 1993 was Art Santen's last issue as Editor of JFO. That means that John Stanley has been editor for almost a decade, two-thirds of our married life he has also been married to JFO!!! His heart and soul belong to JFO!!! Half of his collection belongs to me!!!

Don Bull's biographical data was included in the October issue. It included his date of birth, the month and year he married Bonnie (hope he knows the actual day) and the birth dates of their two sons. It did not include Bonnie's birth date. Perhaps that is why he's still married. Smart man. They also had a cat named "kitty". Corkie wonders why she wasn't named "Corkie", but then again Corkie the Yorkie is pretty cute!!! Yes, John named her. It's probably best we don't have children, though Medford would not have been such a bad name.

It was interesting to find out that Bull acquired his first bottle opener in 1970, an E-9 #2, Budweiser Means Moderation. In 1985 his interest in openers began to wane as his interest in all types of corkscrews (beer and non-beer) developed and blossomed.

Go back to the October issue to see lots of pictures of his collection plus one of Don looking for corkscrews in Norway and one of Bonnie wondering why they are looking for corkscrews in Norway. All of the JFO spouses are probably still wondering about their own spouse's addiction.

Well, I must bring this to an end. I need to print out auction sheets for the Convention Auction and voting ballots for the Display Contests. Bring some exciting items for the Auction. It was pretty dull for Verne last year with many items not even bringing a bid. We know Art is spending a lot of time on his display and that no one can really compete with his imagination, except for me with my picnic basket display in Frankenmuth, Michigan in 1989, but try!!

Without You, It Will Be Very Blue
Everyone Agrees This is Very True

“Carl Graham Fisher” (Father of the Prest-O-Lite Key) by Jim Donnelly (from SIA Special Interest Autos)

Many of the auto industry’s founding figures established themselves through engineering innovation. Others built dynasties with cunning financial acumen. A forceful case can be made that Carl G. Fisher’s legacy resulted from clairvoyance.

Where others could see only farmland, marshes or endless stretches of prairie, Fisher’s yawning intellect could visualize great cities conjured from nothing and the arteries to connect them. Fisher can be credited with only a single technological advance, but he parlayed it through sheer will into monuments of America’s transportation and social infrastructure that still thrive today.

Fisher was born in January 1874, in Greensburg, Indiana, and endured the breakup of his parents’ marriage while a child. As an adolescent, he declared his intention to support his mother and two brothers, quit school and, with remarkable energy, threw himself into a series of jobs including newsboy and retail clerk. When the bicycle craze hit the nation with tsunami force in the 1890s, Fisher and his brothers opened a shop in Indianapolis and, at age 17, he became a racer. He pedaled against pals James Allison, Arthur Newby and even the cycling champion Barney Oldfield, associations that would be greatly fruitful in coming years.

Already prosperous, Fisher moved naturally, along with other cyclists, toward automobiles as the cycling frenzy diminished. Fisher was obsessed with speed, and recruited Oldfield and other cycling buddies as barnstorming race drivers, with Fisher setting a world record for two miles in 1904. That same year, a man named Fred Avery convinced Fisher, already known for wild promotional stunts, to market his invention, an automobile headlight that burned compressed gas, producing far more light than the kerosene lamps then common. The new firm, Prest-O-Lite was a runaway success, making night driving practical for the first time. A master of publicity, Fisher’s antics to promote motoring including floating over Indianapolis, sus-ended from a hot-air balloon in a Stoddard-Dayton, its engine removed to lighten it.

In 1905, Fisher voyaged to France to drive in the James Gordon Bennett Cup races, and was stunned at the level of sophistication of the European cars. A seed germinated in his fertile mind: If American car manufacturers had a place to test and race their cars, they could surpass Europe in terms of design excellence. With Allison, Newby and partner Frank Wheeler, Fisher raised $250,000 and carved the Indianapolis Motor Speedway out of a farm field.

By the time the first Indianapolis 500 race was run in 1911, Fisher was wealthy and looking for a new venture. Union Carbide had purchased Prest-O-Lite for $9 million, a fabulous sum in those days, and Fisher was struck by a delightfully simple notion: If people had decent roads to drive on, they’d buy cars. In 1911, improved roads were virtually nonexistent outside major cities.

The following year, Fisher boldly gathered most of the nation’s auto executives in an Indianapolis restaurant and proclaimed his sweeping plan to build a paved highway from New York to San Francisco by 1915. Before the night was over, he had secured high-dollar financing from many of them. Packard president Henry Joy suggested the route be named for Abraham Lincoln.

As work progressed on the Lincoln Highway, Fisher took leisure at his winter home in Biscayne Bay, in Florida. He gazed around him at the tangle of mosquito-infested swamps away from the beach and again had a vision, this time of a haven for auto and other executives from the Midwest trying to flee from the snows. But they needed a way to get there, and by 1915, Fisher was promoting a new highway to run from Indianapolis to Miami, then a sleepy backwater.

The road, the Dixie Highway, opened in 1916 and opened south Florida to development for the first time. Fisher was the vanguard of real estate speculators who reaped fortunes during the Florida land boom, during which Miami Beach literally rose from nothing to become a premier resort before the decade was out. Another stunt, where Fisher posed a trained elephant next to President Warren G. Harding on a golf course as his “caddy,” cemented Miami Beach’s tony image.

Meanwhile, Fisher and his partners sold the Indianapolis Speedway to Eddie Rickenbacker, in 1927. Looking to repeat the miracle of Miami, Fisher then began promoting a plan to develop a resort area at Montauk, at the eastern tip of Long Island in New York, sinking millions of his Miami-generated dollars into the plan and securing loans for the rest of the capital.

And then came October 1929. The financial collapse on Wall Street, along with a devastating hurricane, decimated the Florida land boom, and Fisher, heavily in debt over the Montauk plan that likewise went bust, was doomed. He liquidated his Florida assets at deflated prices in an attempt to cover his debts but still went broke. Fisher turned to bootlegging during Prohibition but died virtually a pauper in 1939.

Today, the idea of a vacation drive across the country is virtually taken for granted. But it took Fisher’s boundless imagination to convince the nation that it could, and should, be done.

Above is the 2000 version of an P-26 A-B knife (Made in China) and comes with a wooden box.

Above is the B-48 Harpers Ferry which brought $277 on eBay

Above is tusk shaped handle with a sterling cap end and the corkscrew shaft is marked Bartholomay Rochester on 2 sides. Shaft is just like a P-42. In one way it is a new discovery but I believe someone other than the brewery made the piece. Any thoughts from anyone???

Above is a nice home made E-3 Dr Pepper opener and fish hook. I don't know if you can fish with it but it is an interesting combination. Worth $3-5 as a conversation piece.

I forgot to bid on this, I think unusual D-Schlitz, which always has the square gas key hole in the back. This one has a round hole. Is it common or have I just missed noticing a round hole one before?

Above is the O-2-UL from Helb's Keystone Brewery which sold this past month on eBay, I had not heard of this brand ???

As soon as I sent out the last newsletter and asked about the E-1 Griesedieck Bros opener with St Louis at the bottom, I saw one for sale on eBay. It did not receive a bid (asking $5) so I will assume it is pretty common.

“Opener and eBay Trivia”

Don Bull sent a response to Ollie Hibbeler “What Is It?” item in the last issue. Don said, “my first and only reaction was that it is for dipping hardboiled eggs in food coloring for Easter time. Hey who knows?” Thank you for responding and just maybe Ollie will use it for that purpose this Easter.

My mind keeps saying eBay is leveling off or slowing down but every quarter my sales realized list keeps growing. Good news for opener collectors but the competition is also as keen as ever.

Lots of good “A”s and “B”s were sold this past quarter. Two good baseball players were heavily bid on, an A-9-33 Rainier in decent condition and an A-9 Orange Crush. The Rainier was the first I had seen offered on eBay while another example of the Orange Crush was sold a few months back.

Harold Queen loves A-13s cars. The only problem is so do some serious non-JFO members. Prices always seem to be in the $50-$75 range. Harold wins his share but sometimes lose out and its usually to an eBay handle “MYETCETC”. They are antique dealers from Ohio and they buy for a local collector. Not many non-beer A-13s turn me on but I did like one sold this month with an ad for “The Straight Road to Hell, Jake’s”. Harold went high ($100), I bid $133.99 and Myetcetc takes the prize with a $135. Pat was happy and I always tell myself when I lose, they had to make more than one!

Another catch that got away was the A-26-2 Zetts. It was one of those that I wondered if it really existed. Mark Barren had told me for years that he seen one (or maybe knew of one) in a collection. Being the first one on the market it brought a lot bids and went for $216.49. On the other hand I missed seeing the A-26-4 Doelger being sold as it was in a junk lot of “three whisky items”. It was offered by a Canadian seller and a known Doelger collector on eBay was the lucky winner.

Coca-Cola figurals were abundant on the market and generally brought going-rate prices. I was very happy to finally buy the A-503 Glascock Bottle though I had to go $194.38. Tons of B-2 Coca-Cola brass openers were offered and even a couple of the steel ones. All in the usual $50-$100 price range. By this time most everyone should realize that a B-2 Coca-Cola is a pretty common opener.

Several good beer B-2s and one good B-1 were sold. The B-1-14 Jenner was in rough shape but brought a lot of attention before selling for $151.76. A nice condition B-11 Potlach opener brought $179.50. The first one offered on eBay in over a year.

Then we had the half-worn out B-21 Coca-Cola from Roanoke, Va. I figured $100 will take it for sure, I bid my lucky $133.99 (this has become a real unlucky amount) and the two heavyweight Coca-Cola collectors from Pennsylvania run me over at $136.49. I just keep reminding myself, “they made more than one”. Two beer B-23s went really high. The Jetter’s spinner I have seen several examples of, so I really think $108.50 was out of line. The B-23 Fauerbach I have not seen another one offered for sale, so $105.96 may have been okay for it.

Some good B-24s were on the market as well as some higher number “B” types. The auction I watched with interest was the B-48 Harpers Ferry Bottling Wks of Harpers Ferry, W Va. Obviously some local collectors really wanted this one bad. If you just by chance have one, put it on eBay as this one had several serious bidders. Who knows, maybe John Brown started the company. It is a very tough style to find with beer ads.

Dr Pepper brought some big money in “C” styles as a C-13 was offered (I have seen 3 or 4 of these) and then a C-17 which I had not seen before with it bringing $159.28. The C-19 Nichol Kola has a bottle design but bringing $77.00 seemed really high. The D-8 style is pretty common with cigar ads but very hard to find with beer. The D-8-2 Lion was a steal at $48.55 except that part of the nail puller was broke off.

“E” styles saw a lot of nice soda ones offered for sale with Dr Pepper leading the way as usual. I managed to get a couple of Nehi E-4s I needed so if everyone else will be real good and not bid on those in the future, maybe I won’t have to pay as much! (My main competitor (eBay handle: ILIKETOJUMP) is a dear friend of John Patton’s).

“F” styles saw one surprising price of $117.50 for the F-17-1 Schoen pickle fork. A pretty common opener especially since so many have been found in recent years. Two bidders went after it who I did not know. Cast Iron Figurals continue to be hurt by the reproductions. A “Winking Boy” was offered for sale in fairly nice condition, but was the auction was stopped after one day. A potential bidder must have offered a good price and convinced the seller to stop the auction and sell it outside of eBay. Prices for cast iron figurals fluctuate greatly but really nice ones do well as the R-8-1 Kaiers show at $1,245.00.

“Opener and eBay Trivia”

In the “G” category a G-5-UL New England Brewing Co opener went for $136.49. Guess who finished second (Old Lucky $133.99). I am sorry I ran Ed Johnson up on this one, but I really like G-5s. One of the sister types to a G-5 is the G-10 with a corkscrew. A pretty rough G-10 Maltosia brought $230.27 while a G-10 Liebig Malt brought a more reasonable $108.49. Keeping with beer corkscrews I was somewhat surprised at the H-10 Burkhardt only bringing $33.59. Deals can be found.

Maybe members will finally realize the K-2-3 Jackson are common. They just keep being offered and in reality there are not too many K-2s that are “rare”. L-2s scored big with two Strohs and one Texas and all three in nice condition. John Weatherhead continued selling Bob Kay’s former collection of L-4s. Since most are in really nice condition (that is a matter of opinion) they have for the most part brought big money. Maybe the market will settle down some as he is selling the last few pieces from this collection.

“M-3” sliders were plentiful and amazingly, two M-3 Erin Brew openers (both blue) were sold this quarter. The second seller was alert enough to see what the first one brought and cashed in. You can throw out the two prices on the M-3-14 Piels. They were nice shape but to think two common sliders brought that much is just hard to believe. But if you are selling that is what makes eBay great, a lot of novice buyers.

I am sorry to keep showing the prices for the fake M-19 Coca-Cola openers but I figure members need a reminder. Prices are starting to fall fast on these pieces as a second seller has entered the market. As I was going to press, one brought $20 (that is a fair but probably still high price). This fake gold mine is finally drying up.

A nice “M-73” Yellow Kessler Hotel did well at $307.55. For some reason yellow sliders do not hold up near as well as the other colors especially with the M-73s. A nice N-4 Anheuser-Busch knife did well at $145.00. The first N-20 Coca-Cola button hook was offered and brought a good price at $200 (valued higher in Petretti’s book). The N-36 saw some aggressive bidding by Hamms collectors before being reeled in by Pat Stambaugh (bring those Minnesota openers to the convention for Pat). Maybe collectors will realize that the N-506 Coca-Cola openers are fairly common (in the shape of a large bottle cap).

“O” types saw two Uls for “O-2”s with both realizing over $100. The lucky buyer in both cases was Scott Parzanese, a collector from Pennsylvania who loves painted wall openers. Starr X continue their strong selling prices as some new collector always seems to show up and start buying if prices for any of the more difficult ones begin falling. I was very happy to get O-526 Coca-Cola with the original package for $27.61.

Did I say my bids of $133.99 were unlucky, then my bid of $192.92 was real unlucky for the P-1-14 Schorr as Jim Osborn wanted it pretty bad as he paid $195.42. Wood handle beer ads corkscrew bring mixed results some great and them some great buys also. I keep saying one of these days I will list more of the A-B knives as there are so many variations. There always seem to be an A-B knife selling on eBay. The latest craze is a “Made in China” copy of the original P-26 A-B with red and black handles. Apparently they were given out in 2000 to selected distributors and have been selling in the $300 range.

Corkscrews saw the usual selection of high end pieces but the number of high end sales seems to be dropping compared to a couple of years ago. Maybe because of 9/11 and maybe because of the vast number of good and average examples that have sold on eBay. I keep telling new collectors that if you really follow opener and corkscrew categories on eBay you can get a good feel for what is common and what is rare. It takes time to keep track but you will be rewarded with some great purchases at fair prices.

Now I know I have complained enough about losing on bids of $133.99 but if anyone sees Mike Krejci that semi-truck on the side of the road needing help, just keep on going. I beat him on a Blatz knife this quarter for my only victory over him as he time and again took me to the cleaners on good openers. Some members have taken to heart my advice to follow and learn value and nice openers. The man who honks his horn, Mike, has.

Somehow I dodged two bullets to get this F-6 -UL Biewer from Mt. Clemens, Mich (inset shows back side of the opener). First Jim Kaiser did not see it and second the granddaughter of Biewer did not know what to bid, though I had to bid $69 to beat her out. Remember if they made one, they almost always made more (unless it is a salesman's sample).
