N-113-1 Budweiser

The feature opener for this issue is an N-113-1 Budweiser. The only one I know of and it was bought on eBay. The seller was from New York City and said she got it from a local estate sale. She also offered an M-73 slider corkscrew advertising the Electro-Chemical Co. and finally the unique folding Moxie opener/corkscrew (now in the Don Bull Collection). Electro-Chemical most likely made the Moxie and the N-113 openers.

D-5-28 Budweiser

Bob Sudduth responded that he also had a D-5-28 Budweiser shown in the last issue but alas it was a D-1-1 Budweiser. Anheuser-Busch made the D-1 in large quantities whereas the D-5-28 looks to be a sample opener made or at least in very small numbers. Remember the Norm Jay slogan, "some small breweries made lots of breweriana and some large breweries hardly made anything". Let me add, A-B made a lot!

—————2008 JFO Convention #30 April 16-20 St Louis MO—————

JFO #30 is fast approaching. Don't miss out on all of the great camaraderie, openers, corkscrews, and just plain having fun with your fellow collectors. From Don Bull's first convention (called "Flying For Openers" by Art Santen) with four members attending, the convention has always been the best place to see and get lots of openers. The main convention activity is Room-To-Room trading and just hanging out in the Hospitality Room. Anytime we have been in the St. Louis area the Saturday Public Show has always been well attended. Make your plans now. It never hurts to reserve a Hotel room now as you can always cancel up to 6PM of your day of arrival. The Hotel is cut-off is March 16th so reserve your room now!

Every five years I list the original club members when Don Bull started JFO in 1978. The list gets shorter but thank you to all on the list who have remained active members and for supporting Just For Openers for 30 years. Listed with their membership numbers.

Spouse's Corner

By Pat Stanley, the Editor's Spouse

It's 2008, the year of the 30th JFO Convention. The Convention Opener is here and it is beautiful...worthy of the big celebration of this great club being together for all these years.

Guess I better get our taxes done, as we head out of North Carolina on Monday, April 14th via one loaded SUV to St. Louis, arriving Tuesday the 15th. Jazzy and Snazzy will be back here doing all they can to be the center of attention where we board them with our vet. We will head back on Saturday so we can pick them up on Sunday. They allow owners to pick up their pets during a ten minute window of time on Sundays. We will be there, glad we've been at JFO but more than ready to see our darlings again.

Being boarded will be tough, as they now have the run of the house when we are here, confined to the kitchen with lots of soft blankets and beds to sleep on during the day. Over the holidays John took down their individual playpens in the kitchen ...after 15 months of cooking with the pens between the sink and the stove. We wanted to make sure there wasn't any aggression between them before leaving them alone together. When we are here, you must look before you sit on the sofa or in my snuggle chair, as a Yorkie might have already claimed the spot. One of their Christmas presents was that they advanced to sleeping in our room, on the bed of course. One morning I woke up to find Jazzy sleeping on my shoulder, resting up after their early morning walks the editor takes them on. He gets up earlier than I do to surf eBay!

The circular floor in the gazebo looks great. Still filling in spaces between the stones with sand. The furniture is still in boxes, but will be stained before spring. We got busy with other projects and our trip to San Francisco, but will be enjoying many hours outside with the "girls" this year and hopefully some JFO friends!

In the October issue I reported that we were not going to ride bikes in San Francisco this year. I certainly was not prepared to bike this year either, but John decided we were making the trip the first full day there, the day you are still recovering from the long flight out, the day it was cold and windy in SF, the day of the oil spill. We rented the bikes after walking down Lombard Street earlier that morning, completely pulling all leg muscles as we fought the force of gravity so we wouldn't tumble down the hill into a heap. The good news is that we were not blown off the bridge, probably because we weighed more frozen. I voted in favor of returning to the mainland by ferry and still feel like we should have won a million for the survival of the trip.

Another thing we weren't going to do this year, if I had a say...which of course I don't, is take the airbus from the airport to the metro, then the cable cars down to the wharf where we stay. Doing that with luggage is a bit much. You get these not too happy looks from other passengers, especially if it's at the height of five o'clock traffic when many city workers depend on the cable cars to get home. Of course it was prime time for cable car riders.

At least John came up with a maybe valid reason for this madness. If we didn't take this route, the cable car ticket booth would be closed at the wharf and we couldn't get a five day pass which is the smartest thing to do if you are addicted to cable car rides. And so John forgot all the cares of the world, riding on the back end of the cable car, happy as could be with our luggage. I sat inside with the laptop which would be needed when he came back to reality or needed an eBay fix.

We decided to take a more relaxing tour later in the week and signed up for a bus tour to Muir Woods. I pictured us riding through the redwoods in the comfort of the bus. First concern was when they told us, after already on the road, that we were in a small tour bus because a big bus wouldn't do well on the curves. I don't like steep embankments so a few prayers were made with my eyes closed. We were going to meet Pete and Angela Nowicki for dinner as soon as we got back from the tour which we thought would be fine as we could just go as we were. What we didn't know is that we would not be on the bus, gliding through the redwoods, but rather would be dropped off to explore by foot. Now we were hot and sweaty. It was the end of the week and we didn't have extra clothes to change into (see I have been instructed to pack light).

The tour bus brings you back through Sausalito where we were again sent off by foot to shop in the quaint little stores. This is the town we ride bikes through to catch the ferry after biking over the bridge. Fortunately no one seemed to recognize us from our 2006 trip when John lost his balance when a tour bus zipped passed us and he touched a red truck to steady himself, triggering an alarm system.

The Nowicki's still met us for dinner, scruffy as we were. They are such a delightful, happy couple, always fun to be with. We had to change our dinner plans with them several times due to their busy lives, but are glad it finally worked out.

I always feel like we are on the Amazing Race when we head over to Berkley to see Jack Ford. We start out on the cable cars that we know very well, then have to figure out the mass transit schedules so we get on the right train. When we are down on the boarding platforms and all the chaos, the race is on. The finish line is a great place, Jack's home, the home of someone who spoils me when we visit. Every year he has a bag for me filled with candy, mainly chocolate. I haven't admitted this to him before, but I do look for that bag when we get there and it's always there. The chocolate is to die for, but what means so much to me is that he takes time to go pick out these special treats for me. He is a very special person. When you talk to him, you know that he is surrounded by friends who feel the same as we do, many of them students whose lives he has touched by showing an interest in them. I don't mind listening to all the opener talk as our visits make me reflect on the true meaning of life, friends. I hope Jack won't be embarrassed by my words which are written to remind us all that it's the little things, the acts of kindness that make life happy.

And of course, I had to go eat some of the chocolate he gave me in the middle of that paragraph!!

We go out to Jack's twice, once to see John Cartwright who makes a long drive up to see us every year...or maybe he's really just coming to see Jack!! Now I really deserve my chocolate when there are three collectors together. John is pretty quiet as a rule, but add one collector to the mix and he is on fast forward, add another and he is talking faster than the speed of light, rambling off all kinds of information and totally in heaven.

John better have his small part of the newsletter ready, as I've been doing a lot of things without his help because he's "working on the newsletter". We were here for Christmas and I painted ceilings while he "worked on the newsletter" only taking time to supervise my work. For months we have attempted to get all the parties lined up and get quotes for renovating the kitchen and bath. The project keeps growing....if we are going to do this, then we should do this...See we can't move as someone has too many openers, so we are trying to update the house. It's not easy since we don't agree on much when it comes to colors, much less appliances. If this work is done before JFO, I will be amazed. And if we are still married, we might make it another ten years to our own 30th anniversary.

My boss would never keep me from going to the JFO Convention unless it is completely unavoidable. 2008 proves to be the busiest year we have had since I joined the Division, so I made sure to show him the Convention Opener so it's etched in his mind that I must "Be There" and you should be too!!! By the way, he thought the opener was really interesting!!

Well, I've got to go get Kleenex. Remember that I told you in the last newsletter that Mr. Clean panics if we are even low on paper towels and Kleenex. Well, we don't have a box of Kleenex in every room right now, so he is in panic mode and ready to replace me. Good Luck John, I'm a rare, polished antique.

Check out the Doubletree, Chesterfield, MO website. It's a beautiful hotel. Looking so forward to being there with the JFO family.

Wanted by Don Bull

I need a favor. Can you help? I'm looking for an Israeli corkscrew. It has a really crappy worm and might very well have found itself into the junk boxes of some collectors. Can you take a look in your collection / junk box for me? Thanks to readers (of "The Weekly Screw") Jack Poncelet, Barry Taylor, Sam Giori, Carroll Johnson, and Sal Robinson, I now have five of six corkscrews pictured in the 1950s Pal-Bell catalog. Above are the five. As you can see, they all have the same crappy worm. Here's the picture from the catalog page of the one I need (right). (See Want Ads for Address)

Norm Jay got this unusual piece out of a West Coast collection. The corkscrew fits in the sleeve but I have always seen this piece in a longer plain wood shaft. Any ideas from you corkscrew collectors? The corkscrew is marked "A & J Made In U.S.A." and wood sleeve is marked "YOSEMITE BREWING COMPANY FRESNO, CALIF. SEQUOIA BEER "THE QUALITY BREW"".

“Opener and eBay Trivia”

One thing for sure this past quarter I had an extra page of eBay results to print. Lots of good openers and corkscrews but not a lot of outstanding ones. With the holidays the fourth quarter of the year is definitely the busiest time for eBay. In the last issue a B-19 Walters was shown with a cross piece attached. Ken Hoesch said it looked similar to a chewing tobacco plug puller. A good guess but it does seem to be a little small for that function.

The “A”s were highlighted by an A-15-33 Steinle selling for $125.00 on a BIN (Buy-It-Now), an A-28-41 Virginia in good condition bringing $89.88, two A-35-27 Knapstein openers bringing $103.50 and $113.55, and finally I bought an A-49-UL Lembeck and Betz for $255.00. The Steinle is the only I have seen, the Virginia is the second one I had seen, the Knapstein is hard to find but funny two turn up at one time and the A-49 was unusual because unlike the A-49-1 Gilt Top this one has whiskers stamped on the face as if it was some kind of “cat figural” not the suspected eagle head figural. See the picture below.

“B”s of note were a B-2-17 Southern Select selling for $177.50, a B-2-35 Bangor in excellent condition bringing $215.25 while one in fair condition brought $9.99, a B-21-610 Kolb sold for $103.62, a B-22-91 Stevens Point brought $116.49, a B-22 My Coca-Cola sold for $200.00 (BIN) and a B-22 Pepsi-Cola from Goldsboro, N. C. sold for $126.49.

The Southern Select sold the first quarter of 2007 for $81.00 so $177.50 is probably a little high. The two Bangors were on different ends of the condition range but the fair condition one was readable. The few times this opener has been on the market it usually sells very well. The Kolb is one of those breweries that it is hard to find any kind of openers from and the Stevens Point is one I had not seen sold before. The two B-22s sodas were also the first time either one had been on the market and the My-Coca of course has the interesting history of being made from the “Original Coca-Cola Formula” before being forced out of business by Coca-Cola. The Pepsi-Cola opener had the town name and with beer or soda that is always a plus.

One “C”, a C-11 Coca-Cola with the B. P. O. E. Elk’s head brought $89.08, an E-6-115 saw many bidders before selling for $128.49, and finally “Mr. Wire”, Larry Moter, bought an interesting lot of two openers for $79.99 (one was an E-23-24 Bohrer and the other was an E-14-862 Lafayette). The C-11 sold for a fair price, the E-6 is a real tough Minnesota opener to find, and Larry’s two wires were two very hard to find openers from Indiana.

Cast iron figurals saw several examples sell this quarter and the big highlight was a “Winking Boy” selling for $656.02. Prices for cast iron are very hard to figure as more and more of the tougher openers are sold. It just seems more cast iron is showing up than there are collectors. Of course fakes of mainly the common figurals does not help along with some recent fakes of harder to find ones like the skull.

One interesting “H” opener, an H-1-31 Haefner, brought $113.55. I got the one for my collection on eBay one year ago for $36.00. Timing is everything on eBay and I guess I was just very lucky. “K” barmounts were topped by a K-2-8 Pearl realizing $130.00. The K-2-8 is one of the tougher K-2s to find. Part of a nice corkscrew collection sold by Don Bull this past quarter saw a L-2 Kellys Private Stock Whiskey sell for $185 with BIN (Buy-It-Now). As usual even the common L-2 bottle corkscrews bring decent money as demand never seems to let up on these. Don also sold a top loading M-25 Old Forester Whiskey for $153.51. The top loading Old Forester is much harder to find than the bottom loading version.

A very hard to find beer style, a M-20, saw an example sold advertising Reymann from Wheeling, W. V. Many collectors chase West Virginia breweriana and this being a previously unknown example and the final price proved this out as it sold for $191.38. Several M-73 1934 Chicago World’s Fair corkscrew sliders sold and surprisingly the top result sold was missing its button but still realized $113.52. Its hard to figure many times on eBay and this was one of those mystery times. A certain seller, “Airborne306”, on eBay has sold several N-5 style boot knives with various brewery names. These are fantasy items and buyers should beware! Another knife seeing some unusual action was a N-45-1 Metz round 2-blade knife. It brought $177.50 the first time and $66.00 the second time and a truer value would be the second price.

Finally in the “N”s the seemingly never ending supply of N-506 Coca-Cola bottle cap openers advertising Coca-Cola’s 50th Anniversary had one with the dates 1900-1950 Mint-In-Box sell for $635.00. A record for the opener and probably $500 over priced but the dated N-506 (the other listing has In Bottles) is much harder to find. Remember timing is everything on eBay.

Congratulations goes out to John Cartwright for finally obtaining an O-4-22 Golden Glow wall mount. Even though the seller, Terry Fadina who bought Dale Deckert’s collection, said the reserve was $99.99, John bought it for $49.99. I can finally remove the opener from his want list. Another couple of Don Bull’s corkscrews stood out in the “P”s, a P-11 Williamson Tip-Top sold for $127.50 and the always strong selling P-13-1 Schlitz brought $295.00 on a BIN. Both were in excellent condition. A previously unknown P-25 beer knife advertising Hinckel’s Brewery of Albany, N. Y. realized $430.00 despite having two broken blades. The knife was interesting as it had large red celluloid inserts in the metal handles. Lastly Jim Osborn got a nice P-62-1 Stegmaier (brass sleeve corkscrew) for $144.49. Only the second example of the P-62-1 Stegmaier that has turned up.

General corkscrew results to be noted were three English pieces, a Hull Royal Club selling for $3,055.00, a Hulls Presto Patent selling for $3,537.62, and a Kings Thomason with Chinoiserie Lacquer selling for $3,810.00. Also of note was a French Perille Express selling for $3,824.14 and finally another Don Bull sell of an exceptional U. S. 1878 Sperry patent for $3,877.01. Corkscrews continue their strong demand and with many fine examples sold in the market place interest will continue to remain high.

Overall a fine quarter for eBay and hopefully many members added some “good stuff” to their collections. On a side note I did attend the Monarch Show in Chicago the end of October. Many thanks to Norm and Judy Jay for being great hosts and several JFO members were in attendance. Norm had Bob Post, Pat Stambaugh and former JFO member Rei Ojala over for a Friday night visit. At the show Larry Moter, Dave Lendy and John Bitterman attended. Of course Norm and I completed a trade as well as Pat and Norm doing some dealing. Dave and Larry always have plenty of openers for sale and I got a few miscellaneous pieces from both of them. If you get a chance this is a nice one day show to attend.

CANNED BEER WILL SOON BE PLACED ON MARKET

Soon you’ll be able to step in and order up a can of beer.

The waiter will slip a little gadget on top of the can, press a triangular-shaped hole in the container, and you can drink right from the tin or pour it in a glass, as you please.

There won’t be any empties to clean out of the basement every spring and the new punching device can replace the bottle opener as a kitchen utensil.

A Rock Island, Ill., brewery is to start putting beer in ordinary tin cans within a short time according to Charles Parker, proprietor of a Waterloo beer tavern.

The above ad appeared in a 1930s Iowa newspaper. A BCCA member was wondering if anyone knew the brand of beer the article referred to? It must be as of now an unknown 1935 beer brand? Please write me if anyone has a clue!

Also unusual in the article is that the can piercer can opener would replace the kitchen bottle opener. I guess that is pretty much what happened, that is if you disregard those wire openers!!!

B-24-75 Becker Opener Trivia Question:

Norm Jay was checking out what he thought was a duplicate B-24-75 “Becker Brewing and Malting Company Evanston, Wyoming” opener for upgrade purposes when he noticed his latest find was different. The opener instead of having the word “and” had an “&”.

Is this one of those cases where no one had ever noticed the difference or does Norm have a “rare” variation (which was made a new listing)? Would the B-24 collectors please check their collections and let us know. Rare or common it is amazing in 2008 what still turns up!
